Letters to the editor are welcome. While there is no limit on the number of words, please write only enough material to adequately cover the subject. Anonymous letters are not acceptable, although names may be withheld on request.

Dear Editor:

I strongly protest rezoning any of the properties on Lincoln Street between Eighth and Ninth Avenues, regardless of the worthy purposes projected. At this time the area is in an uproar as to what may be the fate of the mouth of the Carmel Valley, but pay little if any attention to these little "bit by bit" proposals that have in recent years been granted—always "just this once," and then another one.

This has been an R-1 zone since zoning was established, but the Planning Commission and the City Council have treated this rather lightly. We have within a tight radius, Sunset Center, The Women's Club, The Golden Bough, The Masonic Temple, The Red Cross, The American Legion Hall, and of course, close in, All Saint's Church and The Carmel Foundation.

There is no validity whatever to the claim that the addition of fifty residential units and enlargement of existing facilities for expanded programs would not increase traffic and parking congestion. Traffic is always in direct proportion to population density, and further aggravated by group activities, whether social or business. The claim that residents will not be permitted to have their own cars is altogether misleading, as required transportation will then be supplied by relatives, friends and taxis, with service vehicles making their contribution.

I strongly urge anyone concerned with this matter to visit this block on any day when there are activities at either the Carmel Foundation or All Saint's Church, or preferably, when there are activities at both, which is rather frequently. Not only are there no parking spaces on the street for residents, but many times driveways are obstructed with no regard for the resident.

I think that we, the property owners and residents of this block, are entitled to point out that this situation is typical of that slow but continuing erosion of our "residential" community which so many decry, while the City Fathers continue to permit "just one more exception." In fairness, if a zoning change is inevitable, multiple-dwelling would down grade residential property values, therefore, let's make it commercial for best possible value—or no change at all.

Very truly yours,

Dear Editor:

Nixon has called upon Congress to provide funds to fight Cancer. Of course, this is all to the good. However, there is another medical and moral problem even more important and which, unless checked, can ultimately cause the destruction of the human race. I refer to the dangerous spread of venereal disease which has reached epidemic proportions.

Man is not omnipotent. He is an inhabitant of a planet called the Earth. He is controlled by natural forces which he must obey and live with or suffer ultimate extinction. Man cannot avoid the consequences of disobeying nature's laws even though the medical profession can give him a temporary new lease on life when he suffers the consequence of his greed, stupidity and the over catering to his desires.

Sex is the most powerful of the forces man has to live with. Its proper use is vital to the future of mankind on this earth. Animals have been given built-in mechanisms which control their sex activities, but man has been given the mental freedom to channel his sex urges as he sees fit. However, nature has placed a brake on man's freedom to use sex anyway he pleases.

Venereal disease is the brake nature has provided to prevent man from using sex as a play toy to be used promiscuously, to be enjoyed in public amusement places and to be spread among adolescents who have not the knowledge or experience to know the dangers involved. Recent high court decisions that it is an infringement on man's free choice to prohibit public display of sex activities is ridiculous in that they ignore the higher basic moral laws which nature has imposed on man in sex matters.

Finding the cause and cure of Cancer will be a blessing but more important is understanding that venereal diseases results from the flaunting of nature's most vital and important laws and the failure of man to accept his moral responsibility so that the future of life on this earth will be perpetuated and ultimately achieve the sublime purposes, the nature of which we can only guess at.

Very truly yours,

A poem about the Odello Ranch

Dear Editor:

May I submit the following poem to help the effort to save the Odello property. It might do a little to make people realize that one of the most beautiful natural treasures of our area is about to slip away from our midst. May there still be time to save it!

The River Mouth

Crowned with its wreath of wheeling gulls
The river nears the sea—
The welcoming waves out-haste their speed
And crash tumultuously!

Terrific hunger has the sea
To greet this shining waif
So nearly lost in drought and weeds,
So nearly home and safe!

The salt, the tar, the seaweed smells
Aromas of the shore—
The driftwood on the steep wet beach
The shells at ocean's door—

The silence of the still lagoon
Before the shouting sea—
The waves, trailed down the coarse clean sand,
By shell fall—delicately—
All sounds, all motions, wild or small,
Proclaim the pilgrim free!

Remember When?

50 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone, May 19, 1921

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H.B. Morse of San Francisco have taken a house at Pebble Beach for the summer.

Patrickson Greene, who has been attending a mining school in Reno, will be home the end of this month.

Complaints continue to pile in concerning the condition of the highway near what is known as Old Carmel.

The regular monthly illustrated lecture at Carmel Church will be given Sunday night at 7:45. The topic will be "Italy".

Miss Katharine Cooke was in San Francisco several days last week, attending to the selection of costumes for the Forest Theatre summer plays.

The Blue Bird Tea Room on Camino Real will reopen next Monday, when old and new patrons will be welcomed in a more commodious room.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip K. Gordon have returned from their travels in foreign lands. Mrs. Gordon spent the week-end here, the guest of Mrs. Keepers. On June 1 the Gordons are coming down from San Francisco to make their home here.

only in Carmel...

A CARMEL BUSINESSMAN, who is a "far out" dresser, is very much attuned to the vibrations set up by the costumes he chooses when he garbs himself for the day's work. If, when he reaches his place of business, the mood of the clothes and that of the outset of the work day are at odds—he goes back home and changes clothes!

WHY — DOES anyone know why? — numbers of Carmel people walk in the street, way out in the street, even where there are sidewalks?

WHEN THEIR youngest daughter married and left the family home, her mother and father decided to dredge out the accumulation of years.

The woman decided to hold a garage sale of the products of the clean sweep. She mentioned her plan to two or three neighbors, who each in turn commented on it to two or three others. One and all, they asked the woman if they could add their discards to her sale.

"Sure," she replied obligingly. "Bring them over Thursday and we can all sort and tag and price everything." Which they did.

Well, they got pretty intrigued with each other's no longer needed items. Started making each other offers and working out trades. Buying and selling got so brisk, the "hostess" whipped up lunch for everyone and the trading continued into the afternoon.

You guessed it—there wasn't enough stuff left for a garage sale!

LICENSE PLATE spotted in a parking lot: MY WAY 2.

YOU CAN'T judge Carmel young people entirely by the long hair and clothes you may not especially dig. There was this teen-age youth in Devendorf who had found a baby bird fallen from its nest. With infinite tenderness and patience, he was trying to teach it to fly, for survival. Cradling it on a frisbie disc, he tilted it gently off and waited for it to flutter, briefly airborne, then float to the grass. Slowly, sensitively he picked it up and replaced it on the frisbie. He let it rest a while—though it seemed to like to flutter up his forearm to nest in the crook of his elbow—before repeating the practice period. We couldn't stay long enough to learn the end result. Except to conclude that there are kids who care.

THEY WERE both white-haired and fragile looking. He carried a cane, while she wore a leg brace to her knee. Fortunately their handicaps occured on their respective right and left sides—so that they could still stroll through Carmel holding hands.

A NEWLY COME resident eagerly asked her Carmel neighbor if she could have the stack of old Pine Cones the neighbor had unearthed in cleaning out her garage.

"If they've been against the dirt they might have termites," said the neighbor. "Let me go through them first."

"Oh, dear," winced the newcomer. "Are termites catching?"

High school students in door-to-door drive for OLAF pledges

An army of more than 100 Carmel High School students will be visiting thousands of homes in Carmel and Carmel Valley this weekend seeking pledges of money for the acquisition of the Odello artichoke fields.

The students will be knocking on doors Thursday and Friday, 6-9 p.m. and Saturday from noon to 9 p.m.

They will carry pledge forms seeking commitments from residents for $10 a month for 36 months, and hope to raise close to $1 million this weekend.

Student chairman for the drive is Cassie Harkins of Carmel Knolls Dr. She said the students would travel in pairs, and will all be wearing white shirts with an artichoke emblem on their chests.

The students, all members of classes taught by Peter Lyon, Ralph Kahl and Nick Zanides have been meeting daily for several months in Brey Hall from 10 a.m. to noon. They made studies of the flood plain, discussed the environmental impact of the proposed 1,844-unit development and the political implications of the huge project.

Bill Pentony of Big Sur, a member of the OLAF executive committee, approached the students several weeks ago and found, in his words, that "The kids were ready to take action. They were concerned and thinking about it."

Many of the students expressed satisfaction that they had an opportunity to take part in a community action program that deals with a real problem rather than hypothetical classroom situations.

Speaking to a few students at one of their strategy sessions last week, Pentony told the youths, "This could be the most important thing you can do in your lifetime. You are seldom offered a combination of circumstances that offers you a chance to actually do something meaningful about a critical community problem."

The students have gone about their work for the project with zest and enthusiasm. Many are confident they can raise the $1 million sought by OLAF this weekend.

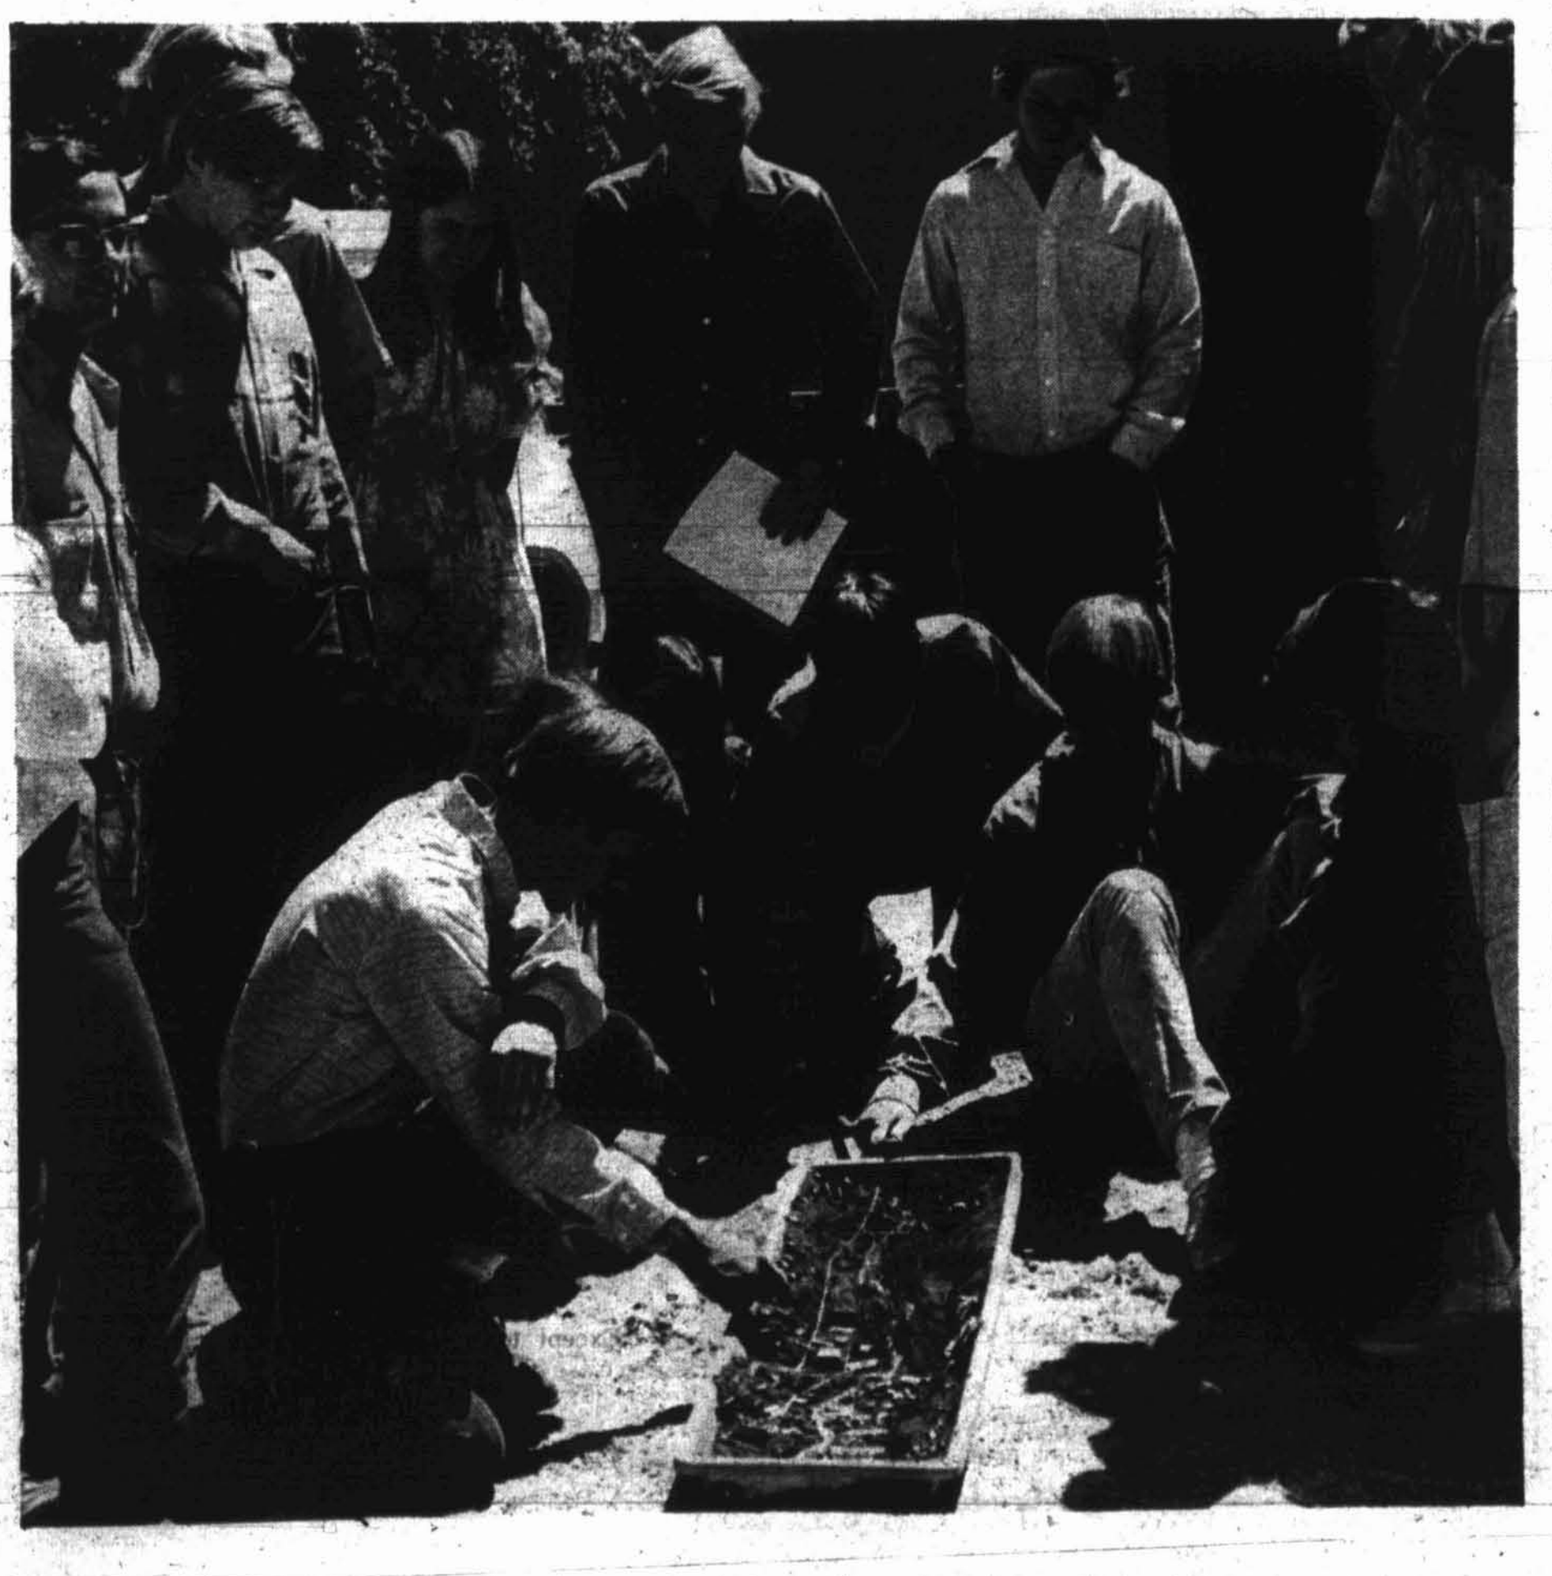
PART OF THE CORPS of Carmel High School students who will solicit pledges door-to-door posed for photo after their regular daily meeting Tuesday. At left is Bill Pentony of OLAF, who has been working with the youths every day.



ECOLOGY IS THE BIG INTEREST of students in Peter Lyon's humanities class, and at the present time, ecology is synonomous with preserving the Odello Ranch as open space. These students constructed a scale model of the terrain and buildings at the lower end of Carmel Valley and then let water from a hose trickle down the "riverbed." It didn't take much for the Odello property to be flooded. These same students will be getting a practical lesson in the art of persuasion and fund-raising this week when they go door-to-door in an all-out effort to raise $1 million in pledges for OLAF, the Odello Land Acquisition Fund.

Says students oppose Odello development plan

Doug McCall, Carmel High School senior and student representative to the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education, reported to the board at its meeting last week that a great many high school students would like to see the Odello artichoke ranch at the mouth of the valley retained as a greenbelt area.

He said there is a "large amount of students who would like to see this area preserved as it is now."

"We at the high school," he said, "would like to refrain, basically, from forming any kind of organization" but support the efforts of the Odello Land Acquisition Fund (OLAF).

OLAF has set a goal of raising $1 million towards the purchase of the artichoke ranch. A Los Angeles firm, City Reconstruction Corporation, has an option to purchase the land for the purpose of high-density housing and hotel development.

"We see no reasonable reason to build houses down there," McCall said, stating that the area should be kept green and uninvolved from the dangers of flooding.

McCall also stated that since the beginning of the school year a small group of students had made "small ecological improvements" on the high school campus through planting and upkeep with the assistance of the maintenance department, which McCall lauded.

"...with the Odello case, our officials will mark their reign with a milestone or a tombstone."

Former AMBAG manager decries "exploitive zoning" for greater profit, calls for moratorium on all major developments.

By ROBERT R. ROBERTSON

HISTORY ATTESTS to the fact that good men can do things that lead to great evil. Also it has been said, "The evil that men do lives after them..." If this be true, there are certain planning commissioners who, if their public utterances portend their official actions, are assured a place in the annals of Peninsula history.

Good men who through their myopia seem to be saying that in the name of progress and under the tenets of the sacred rights of the land owner, our area, in all of its virginal splendor, must be surrendered to the exploiters for deflowering. They postulate that, within reason, a man should be able to put his property to whatever use he deems will bring him the highest possible financial return. This is not an unacceptable proposition to rational people.

The disparity arises when seeking a consensus as to just what constitutes "within reason."

It is rather typical of man's current mores that the larger the acreage involved, the more important property rights seem to become. The man with an acre or two who seeks a zoning advantage is not always accorded similar consideration. But property rights there are for both large and small, and they must be respected. Such respect must be mutual.

If the large acreage holders want their rights acknowledged, they in turn must recognize the rights of others by not debasing the quality of life of an entire area with indiscriminate, exploitative developments geared to greater profits. Further, the owner of a large holding is in a special category. His actions can so vitally affect the lives of so many people that it does not seem unreasonable to expect him to assume responsibilities commensurate with the impact of his doings.

IT IS ON THE DOCTRINE of the rights of the property owner that the Odellos and their small group of supporters base their contention that they are entitled to high density zoning. There has been much confusion around this case, and it is well that their position be examined to test its validity.

ITEM: The Odello property was zoned before the Three Ranches Plan was prepared. This zoning would permit only 429 residential units. With a series of use permits this could be increased to as many as 1492 units or a combination of a lower number of residential units and a variety of other facilities. However, any increase over 429 residential units would require a series of use permits approved by the Planning Commission and, if appealed, by the Board of Supervisors. Further, the high density areas would be under design control.

ITEM: Outside of a strip along the highway, the west 176 acres is not now zoned. It is in an RO category, which means by ordinance it can be used only for agriculture or for 114 residential units.

ITEM: The Three Ranches Plan is so vague and misleading it is practically useless as a plan. It, depending upon interpretation, would permit anywhere between 974 and 2348 units! In other words it is purposely vague so its authors can ask for anything they want.

ITEM: The Three Ranches Plan has no authority. It was accepted by the Board of Supervisors as the way the three big property owners would like generally to develop their holdings. It was never approved by the County Planning Commission.

IT WOULD APPEAR that the Odello case goes somewhat beyond the question of the rights of a property owner—beyond the "within reason" use of property. It appears rather that the question revolves around the rights of the people of the area, for they are the ones whose rights are in jeopardy.

They are the ones who are expected to accept a degradation of the area they have chosen to live in while their officials dispense their largesse through the conjuration of high-density zoning. If the spawn of the proposed development could be restricted to the confines of the Odello property, it possibly could be countenanced. Unfortunately, it inescapably must spill over to befoul the entire Peninsula, impinging on the rights of all.

The Odello incident has brought into sharp focus a continuing problem that the people of the Peninsula must face—the future growth of the Peninsula. In this regard it is a fact to ponder that four individual holdings control well over one-half of all the remaining open lands in the Monterey Peninsula Area.

There is no quarrel with this, but neither should these owners object when the 100,000 people whose quality of life is affected by the way these lands are to be used display more than a casual interest in the developmental proposals.

The owners of the large acreages have contributed greatly to the beauty of our area by leaving their lands in a natural state, and we should be appreciative. It is more than a coincidence, however, that the potential value of these same lands has grown by leaps and bounds over the years. The temptation now is indeed great to use indiscriminately the magic of high-density zoning to make a "real killing." Here is where all—the citizenry, the big property holders, and our public officials must stop, open their eyes and their minds, and examine critically our present condition and our future prospects.

Here is where all must unite in a common effort to preserve our legacy.

Area after area, city after city across our nation has succumbed to those many times disproven cliches—expand the tax base, reduce unemployment, improve business.

We must learn from their disastrous experiences.

We must learn from the Los Angeles Planning Commission which is now proposing to adjust its zoning laws to limit the population to one-half of what was originally thought could be accommodated; from San Jose's Chamber of Commerce Director who upon his resignation stated, "We unfortunately have grown for growth's sake and have forgotten the consequences...We are victims of our own success."

Those who still espouse the rapid-growth-means-more-tax-revenue theory should familiarize themselves with the Santa Clara County experience. Here is one of the fastest growing areas in the country and it is on the verge of bankruptcy!

The Cape Cod Planning and Economic Development Commission is taking steps to limit the number of motels, hotels, and restaurants in their area—otherwise, they say, "The very thing that attracts people here will be lost!"

Oregon is particularly active in the anti-growth movement. On the theory that people will not come if they cannot be accommodated, Eugene has stopped a proposed power plant, Astoria has held up construction of an aluminum factory, and the Governor has braodcast far and near, "Come visit us, but for Heaven's sake don't move here." The state slogan is becoming "Oregon for the Oregonians."

WITH SUCH EXAMPLES abounding in every area of our country, it is incredible, it is frustrating, it is saddening to realize there are some public officials who either will not heed the danger to our area, or who do not care about its future—officials who are willing, even eager, to sacrifice our priceless heritage on the altar of capital gains.

Somewhere between the zero growth of the more overzealous environmentalists and the total exploitation of the developers is a fair and reasonable solution to the zoning dilemma. The economic problems of the big land-holders must be considered.

The answer, however, does not lie in "Los Angelesizing" our area through exploitative zoning for their greater profit. It is just as irrational for these big owners to expect the people to subsidize excessive profits by accepting a debased quality of living as it is for the people to oppose all development of the remaining open space which the large land-holders own.

There is a monumental problem here, and upon its solution rests the future of the Peninsula. Our area will continue to bloom as "that other Eden" or it will slowly wilt and die under the smothering impact of that mathematically precise formula, "People+Progress=Pollution"—pollution of our physical, mental and spiritual environment.

THE PROBLEM IS BIG and it is hairy. It justifies a cooling off period while concerned and knowledgeable people take a long hard look. To this end a moratorium should be called on all major developments while the area general plan is reviewed in the light of man's new awareness of the withering and irreversible results of his rapacious assault has had on his environment.

We are at, not a critical point, but the critical point in the Peninsula's growth. Right now, with the Odello case our officials have it within their power to mark their reign with either a milestone or a tombstone.

From the indications to date, the prognosis is not encouraging, but this can be changed if all of the people who treasure our area are willing to fight for it. We are blessed beyond our appreciation for our environment is still relatively intact. We are in the enviable position of being able to so plan our future growth that it can be done "right the first time."

We must defend this vantage point against outside developers, local opportunists and if necessary against our own officials. The Odello case will test the determination of Peninsula residents in this regard.

It is time to declare your position. Take up your pen and write. Write to the supervisors—they want to know how you feel. Write to Prudential Life Insurance—they do not want to sponsor projects opposed by the majority of the citizens.

Write, right now!

It doesn't amount to much.

Especially when you consider that the new 1971 Volkswagen is $74.00 less than last year's model!

STUDENTS TO SEEK PLEDGES IN DOOR-TO-DOOR DRIVE THIS WEEKEND

A GROUP OF MORE THAN 100 students from Carmel High School will be calling personally on residents of the Carmel and Carmel Valley areas Thursday, Friday and Saturday seeking pledges for the acquisition of the Odello artichoke fields. They will be seeking pledges of $10 a month for 36 months, and hope to raise a large amount of money to preserve the area for permanent green space. This is your chance to help preserve the environmental quality of the Carmel area for years to come. Give. Give till it hurts. Fill out the pledge form below and have it ready when the volunteers call at your home, or mail it to OLAF, Box 3844, Carmel 93921.

THE THREAT...

For 47 years, the Odello land has been used for raising artichokes. Economic factors are forcing the Odello family to abandon their farm and to consider an alternate use for the land.

This development plan, as presented by City Reconstruction Corporation with the backing of the Prudential Insurance Company, calls for a major residential resort complex consisting of 944 dwelling units, a 300 unit spa resort and a 600 unit lodge.

The impact of such a development on its surroundings is of vital importance to all. Consider the following:

- The average occupancy of the development will approximate, if not exceed, the total population of the adjacent City of Carmel.
- The proposed lodge will be immediately adjacent to the wildlife sanctuary. Damage to the State Beach and to the complex shoreline and marine ecology resulting from the introduction of a high density development will be irreversible.
- Taxes generated by the new development will fall far short of paying for the services which will be required, particularly where schools are concerned.
- The entire property is situated on a flood plain, and has been inundated several times in the recent past.

THE SOLUTION...

The Odello Land Acquisition Fund (OLAF) has been established by concerned citizens with the objective of purchasing the Odello property and of deeding it to the public as open space for the future. Possible uses would include addition to the State Park, leaseback for compatible agricultural use, and the establishment of hiking and riding trails.

Contributions are sought from governmental agencies, conservation organizations, foundations, and most importantly, from private citizens, who, as residents or visitors, will be the ultimate beneficiaries. Your contribution will be tax-deductible.

Our remaining open space is an irreplaceable asset...we must be willing to take positive action now to preserve it for posterity. With your help, we will succeed.

OLAF OPEN SPACE SUBSCRIPTION PLEDGE

A PURCHASE FOR THE FUTURE OF CARMEL

The undersigned ("Subscriber") in consideration of the efforts of "OLAF to raise funds from private citizens and governmental agencies and in consideration of the raising of subscriptions from any of these sources for the purpose of acquiring for public ownership the real property generally described as the "Odello Ranch", bordering on Highway 1, Monterey County, California, south of Carmel, and in further consideration of the subscription of other subscribers and of the efforts of "OLAF" to negotiate a purchase for public purposes of said real property, agrees to contribute to the Odello Land Acquisition Fund as follows:

1. This subscriber, on written demand by OLAF mailed to the subscriber's address set forth below will pay to OLAF or its nominee, the sum of $_____, cash or in equal monthly installments of $_____ per month for _____ months, subject to the following conditions which, if not met, shall relieve the subscriber from the obligation of this subscription:

A. That payment or payments when made shall be a tax deductible donation;

B. That the total sum shall, be used exclusively for the purchase of all or part of the "Odello Ranch", for public ownership;

C. That this subscription is enforceable only if said demand is made by OLAF on or before December 30, 1972.

Jaguar V-12: The ultimate cat

The reason: Jaguar's new aluminum 12-cylinder engine. Possibly the most exciting automotive development in a decade.

The V-12 configuration is inherently balanced. Its smoothness is almost uncanny. The V-12 hits 70 m.p.h. with such sinuous grace, one hardly experiences the sensation of motion.

Jaguar's V-12 engine displaces only 326 cubic inches, yet develops 314 horsepower. Its cylinders have a large bore and the pistons a short stroke, for higher potential power and longer engine life.

The ignition system is transistorized. With no contact points to wear or foul, a major cause of engine tuneups is eliminated.

Additional virtues: fully independent suspension. Four-wheel disc brakes, power-assisted. Rack-and-pinion steering, also power-assisted.

See the Jaguar 2+2 at our showroom. Surprisingly, the ultimate cat, with the V-12 engine, costs only $7325.00.

The conscience of Carmel:

Let's get zoning straight

BY GUNNAR NORBERG

"WHAT happens on the Odello property is going to fashion to a great degree what happens to our entire area in the future..."

This was quoted from a recent talk made by County Supervisor Willard Branson to Carmel's High Twelve Club. And it is a statement to which people heading homeowner and citizen-group organizations in the whole Carmel River watershed area have, in substantial effect, already said an emphatic "amen."

It is, in fact, why those same community leaders set up a single entity, the Carmel Area Coalition, which is now busy preparing to insist that the County Planning Commission, at its scheduled July 28th public hearing on the Odello rezoning request, should reject that rezoning request.

It is also why the affiliated OLAF (Odello Land Acquisition Fund) organization is ardently trying to collect the money which would be needed to convert the Odello ranch to "open space" or public park use.

There is another quotation from that same talk of Supervisor Branson's which, however, would not win the kind of near-unanimous approval from the community leaders who set up the Carmel Area Coalition to fight the kind of high-density resort-and-residential rezoning which City Reconstruction Corporation seeks so that it would be allowed to put 1844 transient-and-permanent dwelling units on that same 292-acre Odello artichoke ranch.

Here is that second quotation from Supervisor Branson's talk (and, in this one, he was making reference to Odello property rights):

"...I am tired of having 'A' and 'B' decide what is to be done with C's property."

First, let's understand that it isn't any single 'A' and any single 'B' who decides anything at all about any 'C's' property. Essentially, it is all the 'A's' and all the 'B's' and all the 'C's' who decide just what basically can be done with the property of each of them and all of them. Usually this is accomplished through government.

In the case of Monterey County, and in the case of the Odello farmland which is outside the city limits and thus outside the city jurisdiction of the City of Carmel, this basic decision as to just what kind of use is, or is not, to be allowed, is deliberated upon, first by the County Planning Commission (which makes its recommendation), and then by the County Board of Supervisors (which makes the definitive decision).

THUS THE COUNTY BOARD—of which Supervisor Branson is a member representing the geographic area which includes the whole unincorporated but occupied space outside the City of Carmel and up and down the Carmel Valley—is the one which ultimately decides, and has the delegated power to decide—on behalf of all those thousands of A-B-and-C individuals just what kind of use can, in the future, be allowed on that Odello artichoke farmland.

The law upon which this power rests has been on the statute books of the state for a half century or more, though it is, of course, subject to amendment each time the state legislature is in session. The part of the law to which I refer, is that portion of the State Government Code which is usually called the California State Planning Act.

Just to make sure that governing bodies, such as the County Board of Supervisors and its advisory body, the County Planning Commission, may be in no doubt about the legitimacy of their power-to-reject in such rezoning matters as the one now being proposed by City Reconstruction Corporation for the Odello ranch, the purpose clause at the head of the state's zoning regulations (Section 65800) says in a final clinching sentence: "...The Legislature declares...it is its intention to provide only a minimum of limitation in order that counties and cities may exercise the maximum degree of control over local zoning matters."

IT IS THEREFORE abundantly clear that county governing bodies have full authority to do all the zoning (which means classifying and identifying and limiting the uses to which land may be put) that the public interest could require—that same public interest which here, just now, is represented by that newly and jointly created organization, the Carmel Area Coalition.

Furthermore, the stand of this citizen-and-homeowner entity, in the Odello rezoning question, is backed by the only other-than-county governmental jurisdiction which state law says is to be heard in a matter such as the Odello rezoning one. And that jurisdiction is the City of Carmel, which has officially and emphatically spoken to the County Planning Commission and to the County Board of Supervisors not only recently, but over a period of many years, against the kind of high-density zoning presently being sought by that out-of-town developer for the Odello artichoke farm.

In its most recent word on this subject, the City of Carmel has, in fact, offered its financial resources to aid in the public acquisition of the Odello land. In its Resolution No. 2791, addressed to the Carmel Sanitary District (which it asks to participate in the same acquisition effort), the City of Carmel said it "...is prepared to utilize a portion of its greenbelt funds to aid in the acquisition of the Odello properties."

While the City of Carmel is just now committing $120,000 of its greenbelt fund to the purchase of what's called the Doolittle acreage, that fund would still have left in it some $110,000, and it is a fund which grows as regular hostelry tax revenues continue to be received.

MANY TIMES I have suggested and others have suggested over a period of many years, that there should be more specialized zoning in the Carmel River watershed area, than county government has so far chosen to establish. That county government has the power to legislate such specialized zoning, there can be no doubt whatever, for state law (Section 65850) says in precisely pertinent part: "...the legislative body of any county or city, by ordinance, may:...divide a county, a city, or portions thereof, into zones of the number, shape and area it deems best suited to carry out the purposes of this chapter. All such regulations shall be uniform for each class or kind of building or use of land throughout each zone, but the regulation in one type of zone may differ from those in other types of zones..."

There could, therefore, be special and specialized zoning classifications—in addition to the existing and generalized ones which are used throughout the county—which would be peculiarly and particularly fitted to Carmel environs. After all, Carmel is not just a culturally and scenically and environmentally distinct entity in the County of Monterey. It is, truly, a treasure of the State of California—and, in a larger sense, of the United States of America.

It is, therefore, enormously important that Supervisor Branson, and his fellow supervisors, as well as the members of that Board's advisory body, the County Planning Commission, make sure that they do use all the zoning laws and tools available, so that the special and extraordinary character of the Carmel area may survive into the future.

Valley exhibit is preview for Los Angeles, New York and Paris shows:

Mia Fonssagrives, of Paris fashion fame, launches new art career here

By JUDITH A. EISNER

After ten years at the top of the fashion world, Mia Fonssagrives sat in a sunny Carmel garden dressed in comfortable corduroy jeans, well-worn scuffed boots and a cotton T-shirt.

Mia is in town preparing for a preview exhibit of her sculpture paintings which opens Friday evening at the new Tyson-Hoppin Gallery in Bernadelli Square in Carmel Valley Village.

Ten years ago, 20-year-old Mia and a girlfriend, Vicky Tiel, took off for Paris with $200 and youthful dreams of bringing about a fashion revolution. Recently, Newsweek magazine credited them with being among the inventors of the miniskirt and "hot pants." For years, the Mia-Vicky shop in Paris has been one of the "innest" places in the international fashion scene.

And here is Mia, her golden-auburn hair uncoiffed, glinting in the afternoon sun, without a speck of makeup on her face, apparently as far removed from the glitter-glamor world of Paris fashion as one can get.

"It just got to be a bore," she says, flatly honest. "After ten years of saying, 'Dahling, you must wear this,' all day, I started wearing blue jeans to work."

Mia admits to recognizing a changing philosophy within herself during the past three years.

"I just have nothing left to say in fashion. The only real fun I had as a designer was doing science fiction—they called it moon clothes, but no one took it seriously.

"Everybody keeps reverting to the '30s or '40s and I don't want to go backward. The whole fashion dialogue becomes an assault on one's sense—the over-accentuation of youth—everyone terrified of growing old.

"I kept fighting it, kept wanting to grow and develop and live as a woman. I don't mind being 30," she says.

"My partner, Vicky, loves that life. So one day I made up my mind and told her she could have the shop and the profits and that I was leaving."

Mia, who studied at the Parsons School of Design, had always painted and sculpted since she was a child. When she decided to quit the fashion world, she returned to the United States to "get back into the American push, the hurry-up and rush thing.

"After ten years of the slower French pace, when I made up my mind to leave, I suddenly wanted the faster paced life again, because I wanted to produce new things.

"Sculpture is what I've always known I'd come around to," she adds.

Mia was born in New York City. Her father was a dancer who became a photographer and eventually a sculptor. Her mother, Lisa Fonssagrives, is credited with being one of the greatest models of all time, who also turned to sculpture. Her grandfather, Pierre Vigoreux, was a noted French sculptor of the Art Nouveau school.

With this artistic background, Mia had the distinction of being thrown out of art class at an Eastern private school. "So I took woodworking shop—with the boys," she admits.

In Paris, she experimented with painting in a traditional medium—oil on canvas.

"I had a show and actually sold paintings in Paris," she says. "They were enormous oils—big, sexy, Moroccan-looking, wild-colored nudes—patterned after the Ziegfield girls of the '20s."

But painting on canvas was like a "handicap" to her and when she decided to leave France a year and a half ago, she began experimenting with pure form, smaller paintings and only the three primary colors.

From Paris, Mia came to Los Angeles, a city she christens "the most awful place in the world." She had a reason for choosing Southern California:

"It's so terrible there that it forces you to create some sort of beauty to replace the awfulness," she explains. "In Carmel and Big Sur, it's too beautiful. Every time I wave breaks I have to stop and gasp. I can only work here when it's foggy."

Mia "loves men and women together." She observes friends or people at a party and sketches them in blunt, blocky ink drawings.

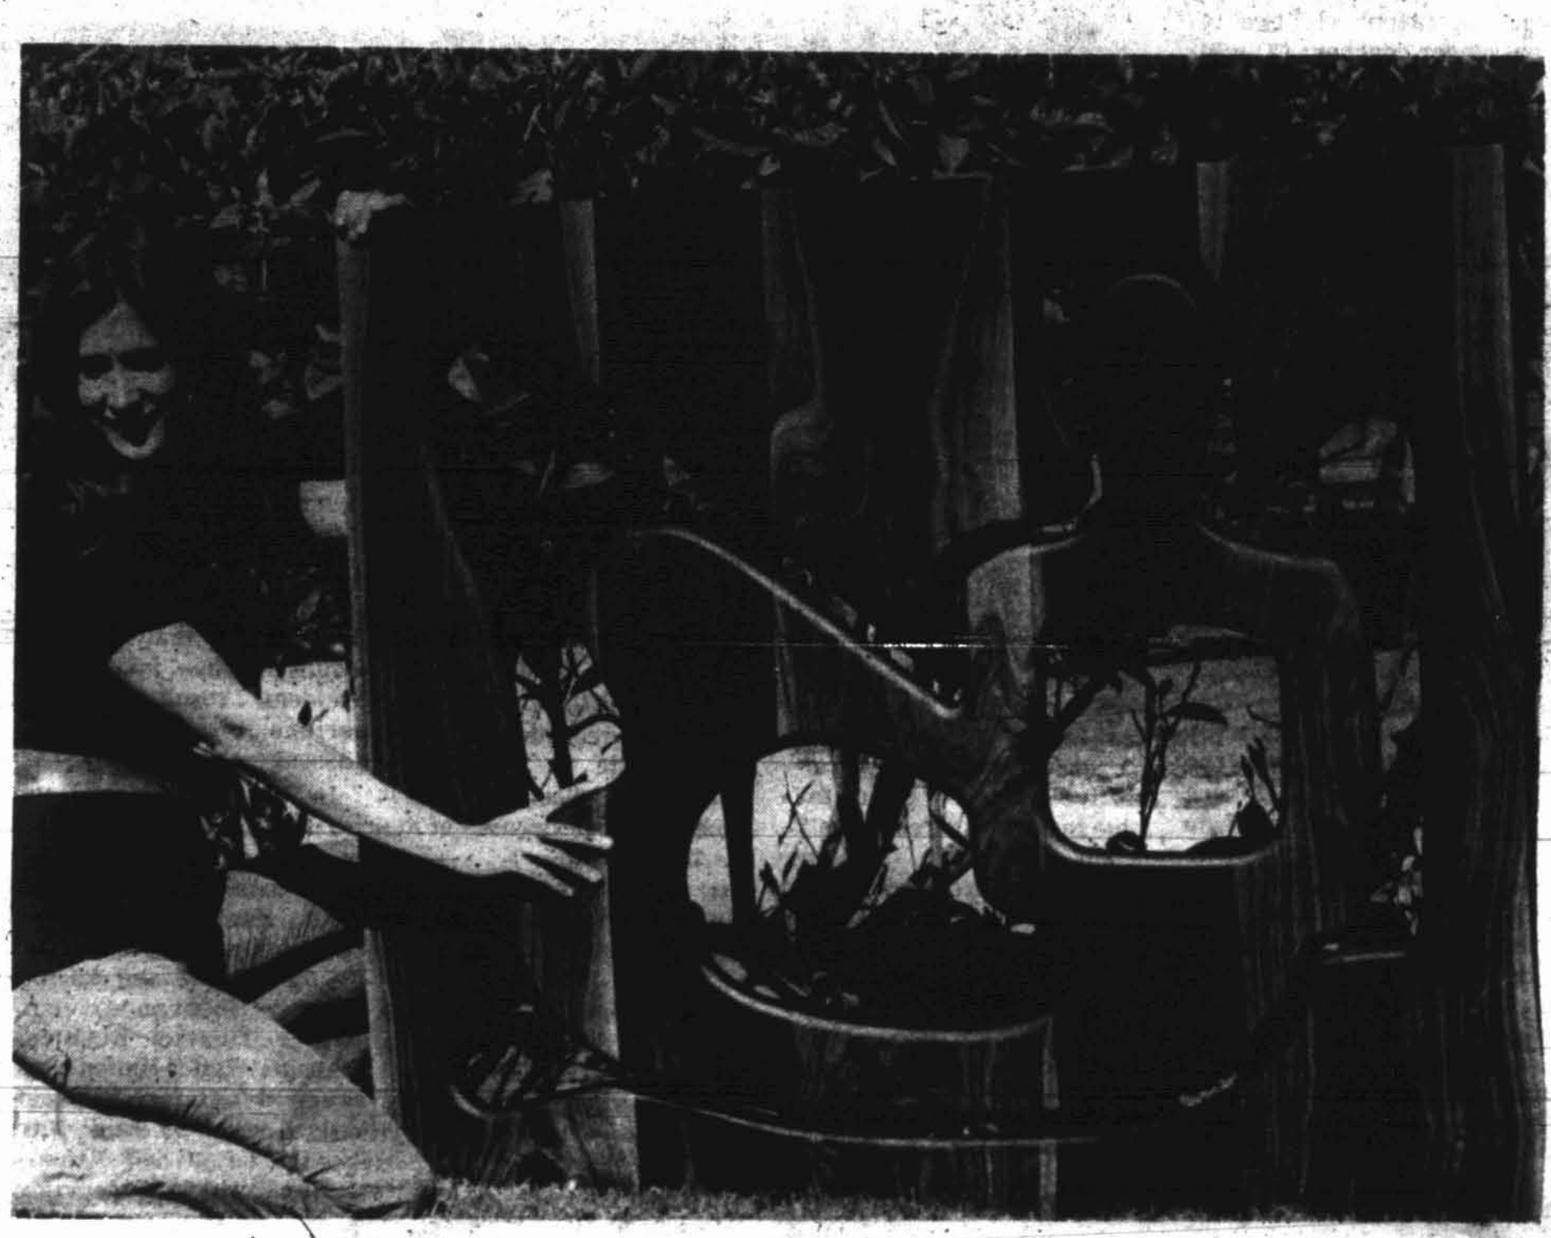
"Sometimes there'll be two people who don't like each other, and they'll be sitting at opposite ends of the couch, but their bodies fit together and I love drawing them together. I sort of knot them up."

Her painting sculptures are a natural result of this "knotting together" of figures and the idea to incorporate the people who would own the sculptures into the forms.

She lights up when she describes the actual work.

"There's a communion with the wood," she begins. "Just to sit there and sand the wood and cut it out and oil it and wax it—the wood gives back the energy you put into it—I guess because wood has to do with nature.

"Down in Southern California, we get a hot, dry desert wind called a Santa Ana. When the humidity falls below 14 percent the wood starts to crack and scream. I sit up with it all night and keep oiling and waxing it and it drinks up the oil and wax; it just loves it."



Photos by George T.C. Smith

MIA POSES with one of her wood veneer sculptures which will be on display at the new Tyson-Hoppin Gallery in Bernadelli Square beginning Friday.

Some of her sculpture is done with veneered, natural woods; others are painted over composition board. The painted sculptures are finished in motorcycle lacquers, sprayed on in a Los Angeles motorcycle shop. On the Peninsula, preparing for her show, she is using a Monterey auto dealer's body shop to finish some pieces.

Because the sculptures are large and heavy, Mia has difficulty in moving them around. But with an artist's protectiveness, she refuses assistance.

"All the men in my life—the carpenters, the guys in the motorcycle shop—see me with these enormous things and rush out to help me. But I'm afraid they'll bang and chip them, so I refuse. After that, they all treat me as if I'm a brute. No one will hold a door or light a cigarette for a girl who can lug those things around!"

After her Valley preview showing, Mia has a show scheduled in Los Angeles in October, followed by an opening in New York and then Paris. Once she's completed arrangements for her L.A. show, she hopes to take off for Mexico for the summer.

Quite by accident, she bought a truck.

"I saw some cross-cuts of redwood trees up in Northern California and I wanted them for some sculpture," she says. "But I had no way of getting them home—so I bought a truck."

Once the truck was no longer needed for hauling, she decided to furnish it. It now boasts deep blue velvet walls, a hand-sewn patchwork ceiling and white plush carpeting. A blue velvet-covered bed has been installed, and she plans to get a sea chest and build in a stereo set with headphones and a padlock—to prevent theft. In this truck-house, she plans to drive to Mexico, to a little seacoast town between Puerto Vallarta and Acapulco and just "draw and draw."

Because her preliminary drawings, after the ink sketches, are done on ½-inch plywood, she intends to enter Mexico with 50 feet of plywood sheets. The preliminary drawing part is the "fun part" of her work. "Then, when I put it on the real wood, it all changes," she smiles.

Eventually, Mia thinks she will try sculpture in the round.

"All inspiration sits in the back of your mind, waiting to be let loose. The eyes take in everything you pass, even though you don't realize it. Then, maybe one night when you can't sleep and sit up drawing, it all comes back."

In the meantime, Mia is happy working and learning. She has a wonderful facility for having people teach her things.

The other day, needing brass nameplates for her sculpture, she went to a plumbing shop in Monterey.

"This little old man's name was Grandpa," she says. "I told him what I needed—little plaques, because I can't actually sign the sculpture—and the next thing I knew he taught me how to cut the brass, drill the holes, polish the plaques and sign my name with the engraving tool. I did them all in half an hour."

One gets the feeling that Mia will never be content to stop learning or moving or growing—or enjoying life. Even her ultimate dream is a happy, impractical, romantic scheme that will probably happen.

"I long to buy a boat and have a lot of children and sail around the world," she says enthusiastically. "I don't want to fit in anywhere."

MIA FONSSAGRIVES gave up the glamorous life of a Paris fashion designer to find self-expression in sculpture.

Bids to be sought for new school buses

KIDS LINE UP for their ride back home after a hard days' work at Tularcitos School in Carmel Valley Village. The School Board last week came to grips with the cost of badly needed new buses and decided to explore four possible alternatives (photo by George T.C. Smith).

"Our favorite topic is not before us," said Superintendent Harris Taylor at last week's meeting of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education. "School buses."

Not long after Taylor's statement, the board authorized the administration to advertise for bids on four separate packages, of which only one will be taken: (1) two 91-passenger coaches; (2) a 91-passenger coach and a 66-passenger conventional bus; (3) two 78-passenger buses; (4) three 78-passenger buses.

Trustee James Miller suggested the four different packages, adding that the 78-passenger buses should be considered in that the district may not really need the large capacity 91-passenger coaches.

The 91-passenger coaches run around $34,000 each; the 66-passenger conventionals around $11,000. The cost of the 78-passenger buses was not estimated at the meeting.

Taylor, pointing out that with 16 buses owned by the district it is to be normally expected that at least one will have to be replaced each year, asked the board to consider a systematic replacement system through 1985 by which a certain number of, or no, buses will be purchased each year.

"We should be thinking of long-term replacement," he said, rather than worrying over the problem every year. "We do need to get some regularly established schedule."

Taylor suggested a yearly bus account in the neighborhood of $35,000, adding, "I don't think it is very effective for us out of the blue to request three buses."

The schedule Taylor presented called for the purchase of two buses this year, two in 1972, one in 1973, two in 1974, none in 1975, one in 1976, two in 1977, one in 1978, two in 1979, two in 1980, none in 1981 and '82, two in 1983, none in 1984, and one in 1985.

The district would seem to be in dire need for at least one more bus presently. Taylor told the board that twice last week the district wasn't able to transport children to school from the Cachagua area because of a bus breakdown.

In a related matter, the trustees revised their board rules to prohibit the use of rear-engine and bus van-type vehicles to transport students.

The action stemmed from a tragic accident last December involving a district teacher and students and reports that van-type vehicles, when involved in accident, result in more serious injuries to passengers.

In other matters, the administration was authorized to obtain bid quotations on fire insurance with alternate bids on deductibles of $5,000, $10,000, $15,000, $20,000 and $25,000.

Many insurance companies, District Business Manager Walter Hinton said, are asking for $100,000 deductibles. He said with such deductibles, the premiums companies are receiving their "gravy money" since most school fire loses are in the neighborhood of from $25 to $50,000.

The district's fire insurance expires June 30.

The firm of Heckenlaible, Apger, Paik and Jennings was awarded the contract for $3,100 to audit the district's records for 1970-71. The firm as audited the district's books for the last four or five years.

Trustees accepted the resignation of Joel N. Johnson, social studies teacher at the high school, effective June 30.

Sally McPhail, social studies teacher at Middle School, was granted a leave of absence without pay for next school year.

The board also granted tenure to 15 teachers.

Free Renaissance music program at Carmelite Monastery

The Hartnell College Chamber Singers under the direction of Dr. Vahe' Aslanian will present a program of Renaissance Sacred Music at the Carmelite Monastery on Rt. 1 Carmel on Sunday at 8:00 p.m. The featured work on the program will be the Missa Secunda of Hans Leo Hassler. The first part of the program will consist of Renaissance motets by Josquin Des Pres, Pierluigi Giovanni Palestrina, Tomas Luis da Victoria, and Peter Phillips.

The Chamber Singers have recently returned from a tour of Southern California performing at Santa Barbara Mission, Costa Mesa, Cypress, Glendale and San Diego.

The group of 18 singers are selected from the Hartnell College Choir and perform chamber and small ensemble vocal music from the Renaissance to the 20th Century.

Dr. Vahe' Aslanian, conductor of the Chamber Singers, is chairman of the music department at Hartnell College in Salinas. He is well known in this area for his work as a choral instructor of the Hartnell-Community Chorus which has performed many major works from the choral literature in its own concerts and with the Monterey County Symphony.

He has also distinguished himself as a music educator and as an editor of baroque choral music.

The concert is sponsored by the order of Carmelites at the Monastery through the courtesy of Mother Superior Philomena and is open to the public free of charge.

SUMMER SCHOOL ADULT PROGRAM

The summer school adult program, which will run from June 21 through July 30, was approved last week by the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education.

Adult school offerings will be art, English as a second language, pottery, sewing, and writing for publication.

A $5 fee will be charged to high school graduates, 21 years old and over.

Classes will not be started unless there are 15 or more registrants.

Petpourri

By JUDITH A. EISNER

With every good there comes the bad. At this time of year, the good is the general beauty of springtime, the fields of wildflowers, the warmer, sunnier weather.

Just as the trees and flowers are coming back to life after the winter cold, so are the various parasites that attack animals and humans. Before these creatures get too good a grip on your pets, take the time out to do some preventive maintenance.

Dogs and cats are generally most often bothered by two external parasites: fleas and ticks. Aside from their direct irritation of the animal's skin, these parasites are "vectors" or carriers of serious diseases. They may carry tapeworms, heartworms or, with the tick, Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever.

In addition, if a sufficiently large number of these pests adopt your pet, they may infest the house itself, laying eggs under the carpets, floorboards and in any dark crack and attacking the human inhabitants as well as the animals.

Ticks, right now, seem to be especially virulent.

Ticks have the pleasant ability to go into a dormant phase until such time as conditions are right for latching onto dinner. Studies indicate that ticks are attracted to sweat; animal sweat painted on a stone has caused them to drop off trees and attempt to latch on.

Any dog or cat who is outdoors near any trees, bushes or tall grass is fair game for ticks. The only completely safe animal or person is one who never strays outdoors.

All animals who spend time outside should be checked regularly—preferably each evening—for ticks. If you find them quickly, before they have a chance to engorge (a polite term for sucking the victim's blood), they are easier to remove and have less chance of spreading infection to their host.

In case you've never met a tick face to face before, they can be recognized easily. They resemble a small, tan-colored watermelon seed with tiny black legs. The head is usually invisible, being buried in the animal's skin. Engorged, they look like a ball of chewing gum.

Tick removal is somewhat tricky. Because the tick has its pincer-like jaws deep in the animal's hide, you cannot merely pluck it off. If you do, the jaws usually break off and remain imbedded in the animal, where they frequently cause infections.

Ticks should be "drugged" to facilitate removal. They should also not be touched with your bare hands, if possible.

The idea is to make the tick release its jaws and "back off" so that you can grab him—with a pair of tweezers—and dispose of him.

If you find a tick on your pet, get a small wad of cotton and soak it in alcohol. Place this directly on the tick, parting the coat to get the best contact.

Some ticks are more tenacious than others; they may require more than one soaking before they let go. When you think the tick has had it, grasp him with the tweezers and try to pull him off slowly and gently. If he doesn't come off easily, re-soak for a while.

The tick should then be disposed of either by flushing it away or burning it on a piece of tissue paper in an ashtray.

The likeliest spots for ticks to lodge on animals is in the soft hair behind and in the ears, under the armpits, and on the feet, between the toes or pads.

xxx

The earliest sign of fleas on an animal is frequent scratching. If flea infestation is permitted to get out of hand, not only is there chance of more serious disease, but the animal's biting and scratching will damage the coat, inflame the skin and increase the chances of developing skin disorders.

If you are alerted by a sudden onslaught of scratching, examine your pet for signs of fleas.

On a light-colored animal, you may see the flea itself—and see it leap away as you part the hair. A sure sign of fleas is "flea dirt," or tiny black grains which the flea eliminates as it feeds.

There are available numerous preparations which deal effectively with fleas. You can use medicated shampoos to begin with.

Then, you can choose among flea powders, sprays, collars and the new flea disc. If you are treating fleas on a cat, be certain that whatever preparation you buy is intended for use on cats. Since the cat grooms itself, the flea-killing agent must be safe to swallow.

Flea discs are a new product, introduced to provide the same flea protection for animals who are sensitive to direct contact with flea collars. Some dogs and cats react to the constant contact with this insecticide and may become ill or develop redness or open sores around their necks.

The flea disc hangs from the animal's collar and dispenses the same ingredient, except that it is not directly against the animal. It is also effective for three months.

In treating flea infestation, don't forget that fleas jump on and off the animal at will. Therefore, it is necessary to disinfect his sleeping quarters, and sometimes, the surrounding areas of the house as well.

Bedding should be shaken out, washed thoroughly with a disinfectant added to the wash water and then dusted or sprayed with a flea-killer.

Vacuum the area thoroughly and then spray with a flea spray.

School board approves 'Better Chance' program for high school

Race and politics were brought into a decision made by the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education at last week's meeting.

The decision, by a four-to-nothing vote (the fifth trustee, Steven Sassoon, is on vacation), was to waive residency requirements for 10 minority students and to approve the participation of the district in the "A Better Chance" (ABC) program.

Under ABC, and funded by it and certain foundations which will pay the tuition and living costs of the students, 10 talented but academically disadvantaged boys from educationally-deprived areas will attend Carmel High School next year.

Carmel is the 16th school district in the nation to participate in the program, and the first one west of Minnesota. There are also plans to establish a program in Altadena.

After Thomas M. Mikula, director of ABC, explained the program, questions cames from the audience.

Among them:

Robert Oross of Carmel Valley asked what foundations supported the programs. When Mikula mentioned the Rockefeller Foundation, which pays ABC's office expenses at Dartmouth College and has funded one of the 15 programs, Oross was critical, saying the foundation had supported left-wing organizations.

To a question from Elinor Horne of Carmel Valley, Mikula said the program would cost the district nothing, being already funded by foundations.

When Mrs. Horne said, "This sounds like a long-distance busing-program," Mikula replied that the program was not based on race.

After a number of other questions and criticisms from the audience, Trustee Hilton Bialek, who earlier had stated that he thought Carmel students would also benefit from getting to know students from a different environment, said, "I haven't heard a reasonable argument against this program yet."

To which Mrs. Horne replied: "Well, is it a left-wing program?"

Bialek waved his hand and said, "Oh, nonsense!"

District Business Manager Walter Hinton said that the 10 students can probably be fitted into classes without increasing the teaching staff, so there will be no cost to the district. He also said the district will receive $125 from the state for each student to pay for school supplies.

There are presently three Negroes, nine Orientals and 15 students with Spanish surnames among the high school student body of 1,059.

Teachers want word on salary hike

Carmel Unified School District teachers want the board of education to make a commitment prior to June 10 on teacher salary proposals.

The teachers' negotiating council made the request at last week's board meeting, asking that the commitment be based on the district's present financial status in that there is no certainty that a state-wide school tax will be passed in time to affect the fiscal 1971-72 budget.

The passage of a state-wide tax would probably result in a complete revision of the budget.

A regular board meeting is scheduled for June 9 and the trustees will probably make a decision on the salary proposals at that time.

The teachers set June 9 as the deadline because school lets out June 11 and many of the teachers would like to know their financial status before leaving on vacations. Also, they would like to be on hand when the bargaining and decision-making takes place.

The teachers made their salary proposal last month. They want an 11 percent increase in addition to scheduled raises on the salary schedule.

Of the 11 percent, they want a six percent salary adjustment "to compensate the staff for the increased cost-of-living during this past year," plus, "The committee also recommends a salary raise of five percent to the staff for the increasing disparity between teachers' salaries and salaries in other professional and in non-professional fields."

To grant such a raise, the district would not have to raise the anticipated 1971-72 tax rate of $2.722. The $242,000 needed to cover the 11 percent increase would come from the anticipated 1971-72 reserve of $416,571.

Presently, not including the salary proposal, the preliminary 1971-72 budget of $4,139,068 includes $1,963,743 for teachers' salaries. The average teacher salary in the district is presently $11,790.

District officials have warned that a state-wide tax could cost the district around $1 million.

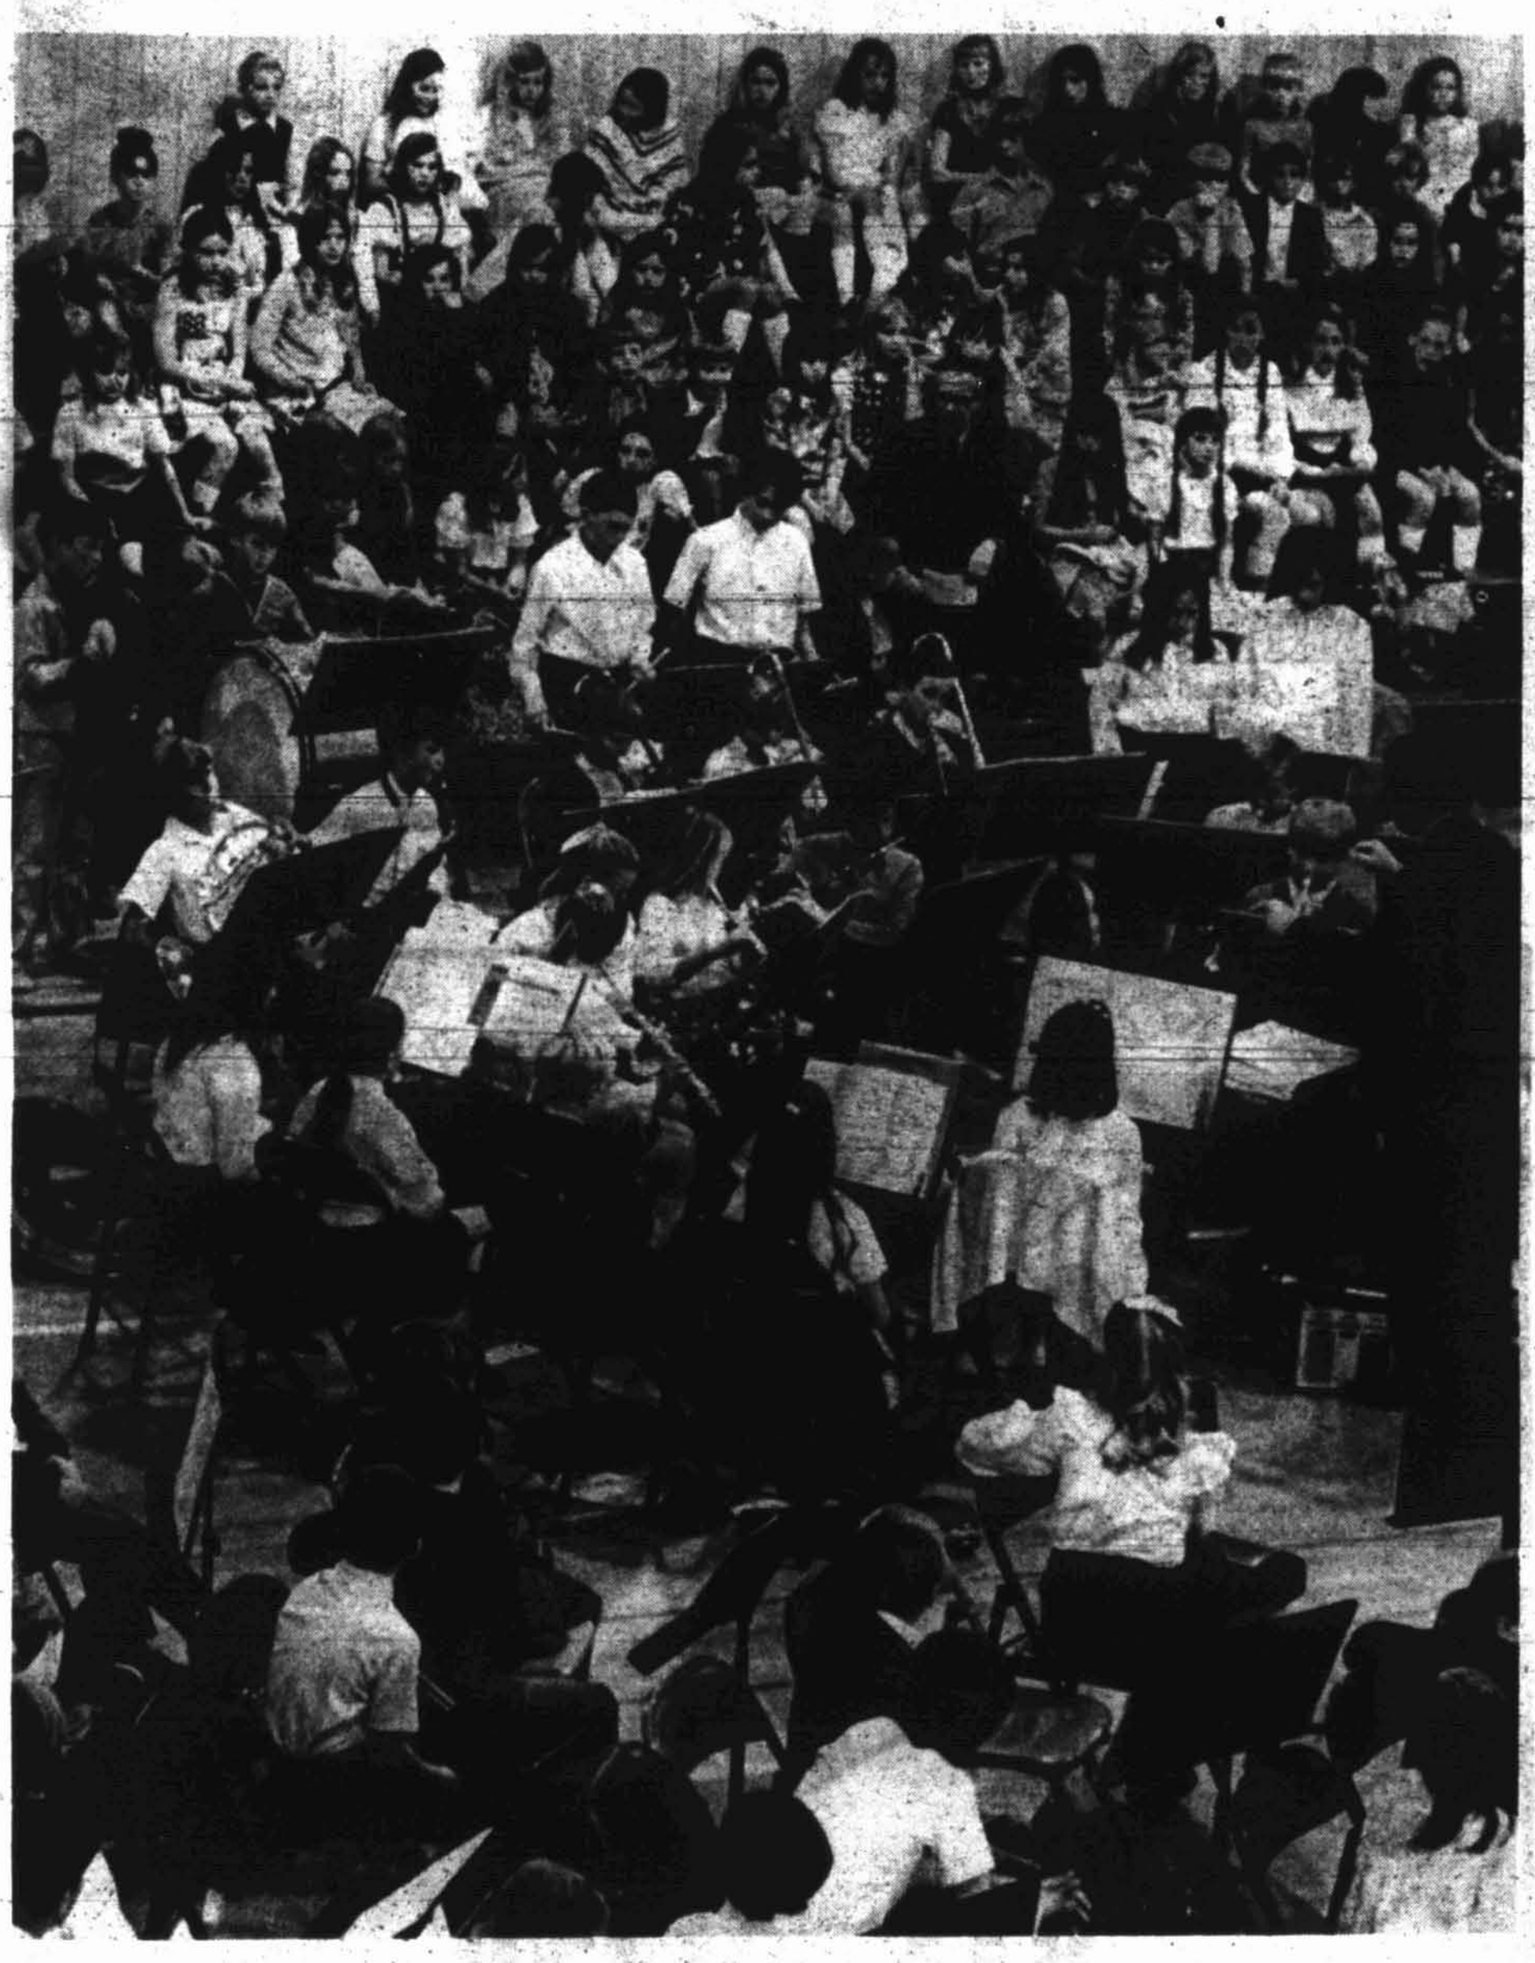
A harmonious "happening" at Carmel High School as

Students fill the night with music



THE CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL GYM was barely big enough to hold all the performers, instruments and pleased parents for the district's annual music festival. Here all ears are tuned into the Tularcitos band as it plays 'Bahama Holiday' under the direction of John Farr.

HARRY AVILA set the pace for the Carmel High School band.

PRETTY TO LOOK AT and delightful to hear, these members of the Middle School chorus relaxed after their part in the program was over. From top to bottom are Coral Armstrong, Barbie Leonard, Betsy Clark, Julie Lipman, Judy Wright, Laura Sherman and Michelle Gardner.

ALL EYES FOCUS on music director John Farr as the Tularcitos School chorus awaits the cue to start singing at the District Music Festival last week.

THE BIG SOUND from the Tularcitos band came from Gary Condron blowing away on this man-sized tuba.

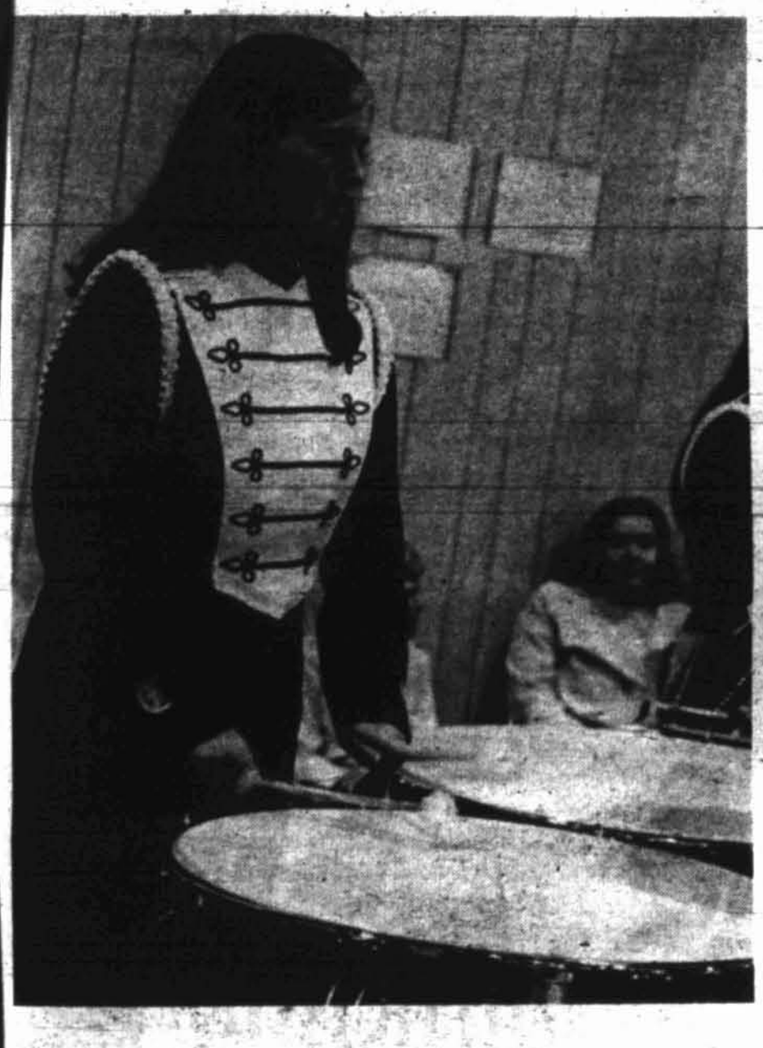
THE MIDDLE SCHOOL CHORUS was tuned in for an audience of appreciative parents and friends.



SNAPPY UNIFORMS and gleaming instruments marked the professional performance of the Carmel High School band. Kathy Walker, left, Tony Pelton, above, and Dave Scheffer, right, were three of the band members who played for parents Thursday night and then took off Friday afternoon for the band's trip to Disneyland.

CHILDREN AND TEACHERS at Tularcitos School gathered outdoors last week to plant a flowering cherry tree in memory of math teacher Lucy Foster, who died of cancer last month. Children from all classes contributed pennies and nickles to buy the tree as a living memorial. Here gardener Manuel Mancebo lowers the tree into the ground at a spot near Mrs. Foster's former classroom. Among those looking on is John Frykman, right center, a close personal friend of Mrs. Foster's.

Chuck Woodson to open 'The Buckeye' restaurant in Valley

Charles "Chuck" Woodson will become the Peninsula's newest restaurateur next week when he opens his Buckeye Restaurant in Carmel Valley. The Buckeye, formerly Lou's Casa Carmela, is at 65 Carmel Valley Road.

Woodson has completely remodeled the old Carmela to reflect a more rustic setting and incorporate an outdoor patio for "dining out" on the warm summer evenings of the upper valley. The menu will feature "early California cuisine" with such valley place-name favorites as "Cachague Game Hen," "Los Padres Prime Rib" and "Hitchcock Canyon Lamb Stew." The menus themselves are reprints of California's first newspaper, printed in Monterey in 1848.

Woodson himself will serve as host. A son-in-law of C. Mark Thomas, well known Peninsula restaurant operator and hotelman, Woodson is Thomas-trained, having worked at the Mark Thomas Inn, the Outrigger and the Hearthstone as a management trainee. He also has served at the San Carlos Hotel and the Clock Restaurant.

He is a product of the Hotel and Restaurant School of Monterey Peninsula College where he was president-elect of the Hotel-Motel Business Society. He later served in Vietnam as a member of Special Forces.

Sherry Woodson, the daughter of Mark and Jean Thomas, will assist her husband in the operation of the restaurant, bringing into play a lifetime of association with the business. They live in the upper valley with their young son, Nathaniel.

Grand opening of the Buckeye, which, incidentally, commemorates a tree of that name indigenous to the valley, will be Monday, May 24. Free champagne will be served all evening, starting at 5 o'clock. Sioux Scott and Jerry Winters, popular Outrigger entertainers, will help get their friends, the Woodsons, off to an auspicious start by performing throughout the evening. The Buckeye will regularly feature folk entertainment, in keeping with the early California format.

Routinely, the restaurant will be open seven nights a week, with cocktails starting at 5 o'clock and dinners being served from 6 to 10.

Symphony Guild to hear talk by SF counterpart

The Monterey County Symphony Guild will hold its annual election of officers at a luncheon meeting Tuesday at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. John R. Upton, executive vice-president for women's activities, San Francisco Symphony Association.

Mrs. Upton received the Phoebe Apperson Hearst Award for Distinguished Women in 1969, the first year it was presented. This award is given annually to 10 outstanding women in the San Francisco Bay area who have contributed to the betterment of their community and given unselfishly of their time. Mrs. Upton was one of the judges who selected this year's recipients.

Her community interests are widespread with the San Francisco orchestra foremost in her efforts. In 1956 she conceived the idea for the Black and White Ball which became one of the major fund raising events of that city.

Her principal activity, aside from the symphony, is the San Francisco Ballet Guild. Her other activities include work with the St. Luke's Hospital for which she received a citation for outstanding service in 1969. Her wartime interests in French relief won her a Legion of Honor decoration. She is also interested in the auxiliary of the Senior Center, San Francisco Garden Club and Aid to Retarded Children program.

Social hour begins at noon with luncheon being served at 12:30 p.m. Tickets are priced at $3.50 which includes tax and tip. Reservations may be made by calling either 624-0962, 624-9661 or 373-2564.

The music corner

BY IRVING W. GREENBERG, Ph.D.

THE MONTEREY PENINSULA Chamber Music Society presented in concert the 1971 Award winners Saturday at Sunset Theatre in Carmel. It was immediately evident that James Shuck, the piano winner, again played with the same beautiful bravura and graceful arpeggiatura that won him this award. His innate conception, technical ability, and intrinsic musical orientation in the four pieces performed gave promise that here was a youth who, with increasing maturity, could be of concert caliber.

Of the works performed, the Chopin Scherzo in C sharp minor, Op. 59, and the Four Bagatelles of Tcherepnin, Op. 5 were outstanding. His encore performance of the Chopin Etude, Op. 10-12 (Revolutionary) was also on the same high level of accomplishment.

The violin award winner, John F. Morrice, did no better and no worse here than he did at his audition. He seems to have an affinity for the modern idiom, performing the Hindemith Sonata in E major, 1935, and the Nigun from the Baal Shem Suite of Bloch with competence, involvement in the score and a rapt expression of its musical contents. The other two works performed, the Mozart Sonata in G (first movement) and the Allemande from the D minor Partital for Violin, unaccompanied of Bach were not as successful, possibly due to nervousness in these opening selections. William Sorenson furnished beautiful piano accompaniment.

THE SAN FRANCISCO Symphony last week was led by Ozawa in Stravinsky's Symphony of Psalms, Ravel's Concerto for the Left Hand, with Leon Fleisher as solo guest pianist, and the La Mer of Debussy. The other work performed, Milhaud's Music for Prague, was conducted by the composer himself, in what seemed to be almost a valedictory performance, before his return to France permanently.

The Stravinsky work turned out to be an ideal performance, in memory of the composer. Ozawa conducted it with a lyricism and a spirituality that fulfilled its clarity and ultimate serenity.

The Ravel Concerto for the Left Hand showed both soloist and conductor approaching this work gingerly, which robbed it of its vibrant virility, with the second movement being the most authentic.

"ELIJAH," Mendelssohn's towering dramatic oratorio was presented last weekend as the last concert of the present season by the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra, the Monterey Peninsula Choral Society, with distinguished soloists, in an aura of profound reverence and fervid introspection—all forces under the expert direction of Maestro Haymo Taeuber.

This was as ideal a concert as could be expected. The orchestra played with unusual dedication and expression, the chorus sang as if inspired, and the vocalists interpreted their multiple roles with a rapt involvement in the music.

This work, set to music by the composer on texts from the Old Testament, is a great challenge to any conductor. In the present performance, a perfect balance of sound was maintained between the soloists, chorus and orchestra, thus meeting the challenge imposed by the score.

James Tippey, the baritone, carrying the exacting role of Elijah, had just the right timbre in his voice for this part. His enunciation was crystal clear, his articulation above reproach, and his interpretation of magnificent proportions. He rose to his greatest height in the continuing recitative dialogue with the Priests of Baal. A better performance of this role could not be envisaged.

Norma Jean Hodges, the soprano, singing the dual role of the Widow and the Angel, again demonstrated her beautifully attuned tessitura, and vibrant expressiveness in the evocation of these parts. It is indeed remarkable how much she becomes the part in every role she attempts, whether it be in oratorio, or in orchestral compositions requiring a solo soprano part. Of particular impact was her rendition of the Air at the beginning of the second part of the Oratorio, as well as her duo and trio parts in the Boys' and Angels' choirs.

Glenna De Weese, the contralto, singing the parts of the Queen and the Angel, showed an excellent awareness of these roles, especially significant and beautiful being her Air of the Angel for Contralto near the end of the Oratorio. This reviewer has never heard her sing with any better intonation, more articulated expression, and greater intensity and introspection.

Paul Raabe, the tenor, singing the dual role of Obadiah and Ahab, was in complete concert and harmony with his beautiful interpretation of these parts. His rather unusual tenor voice bore out beautifully the demands imposed by the score for this voice. The lyric line of these parts was beautifully expressed, and with especial significance in his singing of the last tenor aria just preceding the choral close of the work.

Valerie Scott, simulating the high pitched voice of the Youth, was exceptionally accurate and impressive in this short part.

The Choral Society sang with a raptness and dedication not previously heard, at least by this reviewer, in their many recitatives and polyphonic arias.

The orchestra, led by Maestro Haymo Taeuber, with his incisive and crisp beat, without any deflection of purpose, gave integrated and magnificent support to the vocalists and the choral singing.

All in all, this was indeed an exciting and profoundly stirring musical experience.

Scandinavian films, slides at Brey Hall Sunday night

The local chapter of the American-Scandinavian Foundation will present an evening of Scandinavian films and slides at Brey Hall, Carmel High School, Sunday evening at 8 p.m.

Joe Sveinsson, Icelandic Mayor pro-tem of Gonzales, will show slides of Greenland and Iceland with commentaries on these two countries. A film on Thorvaldsen, the great Danish sculptor and artist, and a film, "Finland Designs for Living" showing their work in ceramics, glassware and industrial design, completes the evening. As usual with Scandinavians, coffee and conversation follows the program.

There is no charge and the public is invited. Anyone interested in becoming a member of the Monterey Chapter which has grown to 115 members since its inception in February, 1970, may write Box 4734, Carmel, or call Philip Oberg, 624-9316 or Mrs. John Beahan, 624-2838.

THREE SOLOISTS who will perform for the second annual Vocal Scholarship Concert sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Opera Workshop rehearse with Nancy Ness Bowman, the founder and director of the workshop. Jean Canada and Albert and Harriet Best will appear in the program on Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Music Hall at Monterey Peninsula College. The program will include selections from Traviata, La Boheme, Il Trovatore, Der Rosenkavaler, Magic Flute and Fleedermaus.

Opera-workshop Sunday, May 23

Aspiring vocalists will benefit from a concert sponsored by the Nancy Ness Bowman Opera Workshop which will be held at the MPC Music Hall on Sunday, May 23 at 3 p.m.

A program of solos, duets and quartets from popular artists will be presented by guest artist Vince Russo and vocalists Lorraine Hilvar, Harriette Best, Ernest Lewis, Jean Canada, Albert Best and Shui-Ming Chan. Camille Olaets will be the accompanist.

Donations of $1.50 will benefit the workshop's Vocal Scholarship Fund. Tickets are available at Abinante-Music, Lilly Walker Music and at the door.

Sunset views:

Many regular weekly events now at Sunset

BY FRANK H. RILEY, MANAGER SUNSET CENTER

"Monday's child is fair of face,
Tuesday's child is full of grace" –

The old rhyme, going on through the days of the week, is sort of like our Sunset schedule. We don't have a regular event for every day of the week yet, but we are beginning to get a few that can be counted on each week.

For example, every Tuesday at 12:15 noon you can join us for bridge (the games are directed by Mr. Robert Hansen) while on Wednesday noon you are invited to bring some lunch and join the others who assemble for our Patio Picnic Day. Free coffee is provided, and those who want to may stay for checkers, chess, or just visitin'.

Wednesday – in the evening at 7:30 and again at 8:30 – our two guitar classes meet with Mrs. Mildred Kline. Some of the other days have no permanent schedule as yet – do you have a suggestion for some once-a-week program that might be helpful to you and some neighbors? We'd like to hear your ideas.

xxx

That was a nice turnout we had for the Astrology Forum last week. What with the fine cooperation of press, radio, and television, plus the fact that people are beginning to respond to our invitations and announcements, we at Sunset feel that we are beginning to reach the community. Remember – Sunset is your center. It has value only to the extent that you use it.

xxx

And – what an assortment of offerings await you! Tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. another of the series of Christian Science lectures. Admission is free. And tomorrow the Carmel Music Society offers a concert by Vincent Russo, baritone, for which you may purchase tickets at the door. Saturday the mood changes as "Sea of Joy", a brand new surfing film, is offered. Time is 8 p.m. and, again, tickets are on sale at the door. And that's not all, for on Sunday the GEM - Bach Mai Foundation presents a benefit violin concert at 8:30 p.m. Contributions at this program assist the foundation's work with Vietnamese children.

THE FIRST PART of next week we give you a couple of days to rest up, (You will at least come to the Wednesday picnic) so that you will be ready for "EMBRYO" which plays on our stage at 8:15 p.m. on Saturday, the 29th. It is virtually impossible to describe this multi-media performance to you for it is different from almost anything you have seen before. It combines music, pictures and abstracts, and dancers – the music and dancing being "live" with the projection supplying both foreground and background as well as mood and color.

There is delight for eye and ear as well as tingling stimulation for the emotions. You will be surprised, startled, entranced, and amused. You can get tickets at the office now, or you can take a chance and hope there are some left when you get to the door – but whatever – don't miss "EMBRYO".

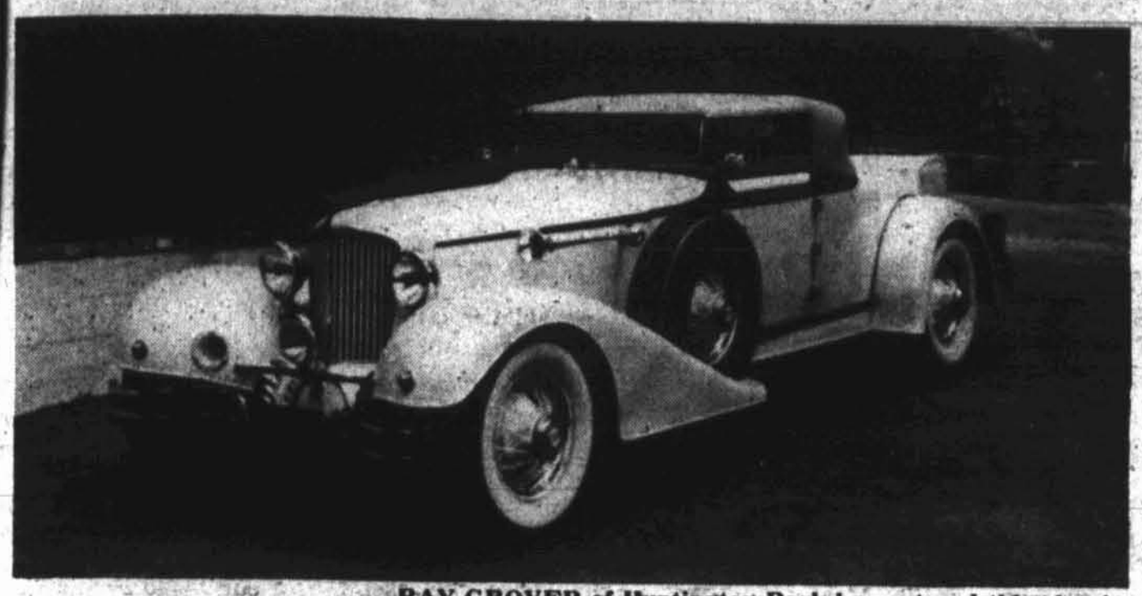
Gwenn Graham Concours to feature many 'firsts'



RAY GROVER of Huntington Park has entered this classic 1930 Cord in the Gwenn Graham Concours to be held May 29th at Pebble Beach. The car is pearl white and has only 87,000 miles recorded.

For those who appreciate fine cars, and the tedious work involved in restoring automobiles into their concours condition, the Gwenn Graham Concours at Pebble Beach will have assembled some of the finest examples of these restored cars, as well as a display of the newest European autos now in the United States.

The event, now in its 21st year, will be held on Saturday, May 29 at Del Monte Lodge, Pebble Beach.

Among the firsts at Pebble Beach will be Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lopes of Pacific Grove who will enter their 1913 Ford T Speedster, which has just been restored. The red and black beauty has four cylinders and a seating capacity of two.

Gordon Harlander of Carmel Valley is showing his 1932 Packard Roadster. With an original cost of $3,000 in 1932, this sleek beauty if black and green.

A 1935 Auburn Phaeton, owned by Dr. Elwood Greist of Livermore will compete for the first time this year.

New in the Special Interest class will be Windom Estes' 1926 Ford T Roadster Pick-Up. Estes, who lives in Pebble Beach, drives the roadster around the Del Monte Forest, much to the delight of all residents.

J.B. Nethercutt of Los Angeles, four-time overall winner of the Concours (1958, 1959, 1969 and 1970) also has a new entry for Pebble Beach. His 1930 Rolls Royce Marlborough Town Car. With a body by Brewster and a seating capacity of seven, it boasts only 11,700 miles.

Although the competition will run high, all cars, whether first place winners or not, will be much admired by the thousands of car buffs who spend the day at Pebble Beach.

Entries are still being accepted for the Concours, and those who have not received an invitation can obtain one by writing: Gwenn Graham Concours, Box 597, Pebble Beach, Ca. 93953; or by calling (408) 624-3811.

Bach Festival housing needed

The Carmel Bach Festival housing committee has been meeting regularly to assign housing to the various distinguished instrumentalists and vocalists who come from many parts of the country to participate in the world known July concerts held in Carmel's Sunset Theatre under the direction of Sandor Salgo.

Many of the participants enjoy staying in private homes during the demanding pre-season rehearsal schedule and through the actual Festival performance dates, July 16 to 25. For many years Carmel residents have found these talented musicians to be delightful and interesting houseguests and have expressed their enthusiasm for the friendships which have developed from the association.

Some of the participants have automobiles at their disposal while here for the Festival while others must rely upon walking. Most will arrive in Carmel on July 5 with others' rehearsal schedules beginning July 8 and July 12.

If you are interested in offering a room in your house within the area of the Sunset Center for a period of up to three weeks, please call the Bach Festival office, 624-1521, and a member of the housing committee will contact you.

The adjustment is not easily borne alone:

How divorced persons here cope with problem of meeting new people

For the recently divorced, one of the greatest problems is simply finding someone with whom they can share their experience. Divorce indicates failure, in the minds of many, and the problem is not easily borne alone.

A group of people who outwardly have little in common but inwardly share many of the complaints of the newly single, recently have been getting together at the Carmel house of a local businessman to talk over their experiences. The businessman, who will be called Bill, holds the meetings under the asupices of Monterey Peninsula College's University for Man. He claims no credentials, other than two divorces of his own, and is modest about the group's aims.

"The divorced person in our society is something of an outsider," says Bill. "There are no provisions for his needs. We're not offering any sort of professional service. We're individuals with a common experience and we get together to discuss that experience—and anything else that's on our minds."

A half-dozen people gathered on a recent evening in the casual living room of Bill's small home on Guadalupe. Evenly divided between men and women, their ages ranged from 25 to 50 and length of separation or divorce from two months to eight years.

The conversation rambled for four hours. One of the most popular themes is the difficulty of meeting new people. The following exchange early in the evening deals with the subject and, perhaps, will convey the flavor of the evening's give-and-take:

Sam: I think it's better not to even worry about going out and meeting people. Just let it happen on its own.

Ed: Sometimes your contacts may not be such that it will happen that way.

Larry: Exactly, especially when you're just separated or divorced. Although my circle of friends is not completely changed, it's not appropriate for me to be going to see my married friends as much as I did when I was married. There's a transitional thing you go through. The other thing is exactly what Ed's talking about, you get into routines, seeing the same people all the time. I don't really wish to get involved with any of the people I work with right now.

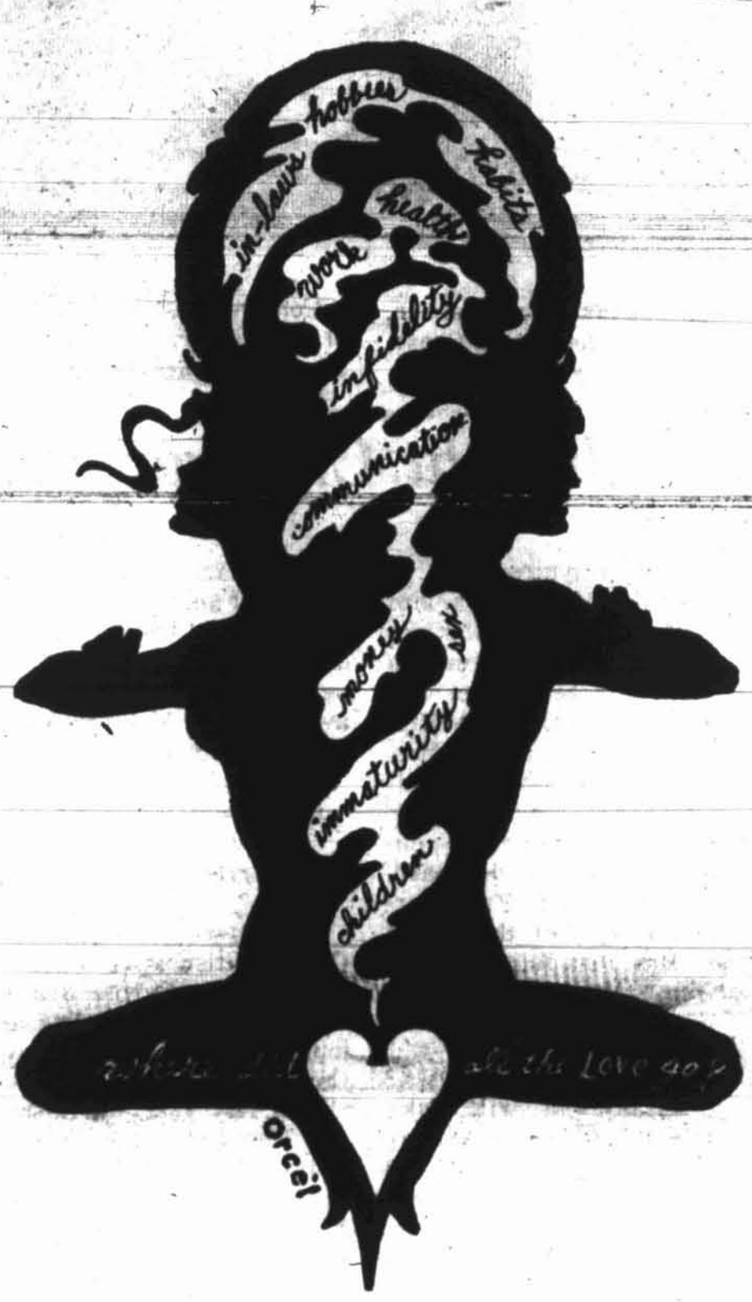
Sam: Get another job.

Larry: What are you talking about, get another job? I told you I was in the Army. What do you want me to do, quit?

Sam: Apply for a transfer.

xxx

Corinne: Remember this, a lot of people, when they come through a divorce, they're really out of it. I'm one of them. I've been like that for years. I'm just now getting on my feet, buddy, after eight years.



Sam: You've been divorced eight years?

Corinne: Almost that long. I've been divorced four but I've been single for eight. Longer than that really. I'm just getting now so that I can start relating like a human being, I guess. That's an extremely long time, I know, but there's a lot of people like that, who are so torn up they're scared to death to get together with somebody, particularly with the idea in mind of a mate for life. We protect ourselves with friendships or arrangements of the sort where somebody's a good friend and, you know, you go places together. It's a form of protection and also a form of mental heatlh. You find a way that you can live. I couldn't have lived in a tight relationship with some guy. I would have destroyed it.

Alice: I was married for 25 years and I'm out of it and I don't want back into anything right now. But that doesn't mean I'm not going to go out. But I'm not about to get involved with somebody who's going to tell me what I have to do and what I can't do.

Sam: But when you're going out with guys you're looking at them as potential mates.

Alice: No, not really, for the simple reason that if I go out with a guy, I've got to get to know him and like him. And if it happens that, gee, that I'm going to get uptight because he's not husband material, I'm not going to go out with him. If this is a guy I want to get married to and he doesn't want to get married, I scare him off. It's like wasting your time being friends with a dog. You don't get anything out of that, either, if you want to look at it that way.

xxx

Corinne: Sam, how long have you been divorced?

Sam: It's not even final yet.

Corinne: I think it's really great that you can think about relating in that close a situation again.

Sam: I'm not going to die.

Larry: How long were you married?

Sam: Almost seven years.

Larry: Do you have any kids:

Sam: Just one.

xxx

Alice: Sure, all of us want to get remarried, I think. I hate sleeping alone.

Corinne: I think as you get older, when you get to be about 35, you get tired of all the running around, you know, being jazzed by everybody. And it seems like a waste of money, too.

Alice: Are you talking about guys?

Corinne: No, I'm talking about everybody. It seems like I sort of see a trend.

xxx

Sam: Bill, you've been divorced twice. How do you go about meeting new people, besides starting groups like this.

Larry: He carries cards with him.

Bill: I hand them my business card...

Larry: He's got some of the most spaced out ways you've ever heard.

Bill: Most of the people I meet—it's accidental. Never when I really go out looking. That's why I quit the bar route. I tried the bar route once and that doesn't work.

Corinne: I go because I like to be around people. And let's face it, there's not that many parties where single people are invited. But by and large I find the bar route a bad scene.

Ed: The single clubs here, I've belonged to three of them and they were very active a year or so ago but all three of them are kind of suffering now.

Alice: Why?

Ed: I don't know. One factor of course is that they were relatively new.

Corinne: They don't have any publicity. You never know what's going on.

Ed: And by now everybody knows everybody else. So it's old stuff.

Corinne: I still think if they had some publicity people would go to the dances. They've had some great parties.

Bill: The singles club still has the odor of being a slave market.

Corinne: What else is there?

CAMARADERIE

No one problem was shared by all those present, other than the generic one of putting together the pieces. While Sam and Alice were haunted by the ghosts of spouses past, Larry and Corinne spent more time in lengthy dialogs on the mechanics of meeting new people and dating.

The informal give-and-take elicited responses—and revelations—from even the most inhibited before the evening was out. As the individuals probed deeper, it became clear that the form of the interaction owed much to transactional analysis, a technique several people present had used in other group encounter sessions. The device occasionally led to some artificial responses, but on the whole an effort was made to face squarely the facts of one's expereince, and to communicate those facts as honestly as possible.

During the exchanges—often a single blurted exclamation revealed as much as a carefully worded history—the participants seemed to soak up and store feedback. An individual might resist some viewpoints at the time but, over the next few days, could be expected to use these viewpoints to examine his situation in a fresh light.

As the evening wore on, the sheer weight of words and the effort spent in expressing seldom conveyed feelings, forged a tenuous camaraderie. "I've been there, too," the words said. "You're not as strange as I first thought. How can you be, if you feel the things I do?"

Additional information on the group's meetings can be obtained by calling the University for Man, Monterey Peninsula College, Tel. 375-9821, Ext. 248, from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. weekdays.

THE OLD woman who lived in a shoe has taken up residence at Fantasyland, sponsored this weekend by the Mother Goose Chapter of the Childrens Home Society. Playing the part of the old woman is Mrs. Robert Drennon of Carmel, president of the chapter. The boys are (left to right) Michael Lucido, Jimmy Heebner, Bobby and Johnny Burchett, all of Carmel.

'Fantasyland' to benefit Children's Home Society

The barn at the George Walker home in Carmel is the meeting place and workshop for members of the Mother Goose Chapter of Childrens Home Society, who are preparing a Mother Goose Fantasyland to be given this weekend to benefit homeless children.

The chapter is constructing props to carry out the Fantasyland theme, "Nursery Rhymes."

Participating Carmel members of the chapter are Mrs. George Walker, in charge of the Hansel and Gretel Witches House; Mrs. "Hank" Fonseca and Mrs. Ralph Thompson, coffee; Mrs. Fred Sorri and Mrs. Russell Townsend, entrance; Mrs. Don Hubbard, play area; Mrs. Fred Termon, Polly Put the Kettle On; Mrs. John Juhring, story telling; Mrs. Leo Tanous, Jack and the Bean Stalk; Mrs. Robert Drennon, Old Woman in the Shoe.

Fantasyland will take place Saturday and Sunday from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. at 500 Martin Street, Monterey. Donation is 50 cents.

Children will be admitted to a trail which passes through two acres of garden filled with nursery rhyme scenes and costumed people. A bazaar and country kitchen are planned and will feature many home-made items. There will also be a Mother Goose Cookbook for sale.

A preview, Fiesta Fantasy, is being given tomorrow from 7-9 p.m. with a look at Fantasyland, buffet and dancing to Joe Ticks' orchestra. Donations are $4 per person. Tickets are available by calling Mrs. Drennon at 624-5202.

Proceeds help finance the local counseling and adoption program of the Childrens Home Society, a statewide, non-profit agency founded in 1891. The society serves natural parents, children in need of permanent homes and couples wishing to adopt.

BUSINESS ASSN. DINNER JUNE 10

The Carmel Business Association will hold a dinner Thursday, June 10 at Rancho Canada in Carmel Valley. There will be dancing to the music of Maike Marotta's band, which will play from 8:30-11:30.

The social hour will begin at 6:30, dinner at 7:30. The price of $7.50 includes tax and gratuities.

Reservations must be made by Tuesday, June 8. Interested members and friends can make reservations by writing to Box 4444, Carmel.

'72 Crosby set for Jan. 13-16

The 31st annual Bing Crosby National Pro-Am will be played at Pebble Beach Jan. 13-16, 1972 according to tournament manager Larry Crosby.

Won last year by flashy pro Tom Shaw, the Crosby pairs the tour's best professionals with low handicap celebrity amateurs over three golf courses; Pebble Beach, Spyglass Hill and Cypress Point.

Sunday's final round will be played at Pebble Beach and the national telecast over NBC will follow the Super Bowl over another network, Crosby said.

Last year's Crosby, also on Super Bowl Sunday, received the highest audience rating ever recorded for a golf tournament.

Scores from next year's Crosby could be a good indicator of how Pebble Beach will play six months later in June when most of the same professionals return for the U.S. Open, Crosby went on.

With good weather the Crosby could be contested from the back tees, and if so, the rough, narrowed fairways, new traps and the 40 yards added to Pebble for the '72 Open will be a factor, he stated.

No announcement was made as to who will be the Crosby's Director of Play. Maurie Luxford, who handled the position for 25 years, passed away earlier this Spring.

Council approves revised plans for Monte Verde, Junipero street projects

Plans for street improvement on Monte Verde and Junipero submitted by Neill Engineers, Inc., the city's consulting engineers, were approved at the recent meeting of the city council.

New plans, presented by Clayton B. Neill, jr., incorporate council suggestions that improvements be restricted to present street boundaries. The council recently became upset when earlier plans threatened several trees and called for additional asphalted areas.

The estimated cost for each project is $10,000 with the money coming from gas tax funds.

On Monte Verde between Ocean and Seventh, opposite the city hall, the work consists of grading the present paved area only and then constructing a rock base and asphalt concrete surfacing.

A rounded berm will be constructed along the westerly pavement edge to improve drainage, which will flow southerly to Seventh.

"The plans have been changed to conform with the discussion at the city council meeting of April 7 ... and the lands and improvement committee report," states Neill. "The cobble curb and gutter and the pathway on the west side have been deleted, and the tree removal eliminated."

The work on Junipero between Seventh and Eighth consists of grading, basing and paving only the area where paving now exists. The present street has a high spot and inadequate base material, says Neill.

"This plan has been revised to exclude any improvement of the walkway or parking area, which will remain as it presently exists," says Neill.

A rounded berm will be constructed to replace the existing berm where required.

Neill states that the utility companies might suggest some utility relocation work concurrent with the street repairs.

Ocean-Highway 1 intersection to be resurfaced in June

The streets radiating from the intersection of Ocean Avenue and Highway 1 will be resurfaced during June, Bruce McClain of the county road department stated this week.

The work consists of an asphalt concrete overlay for a two lane roadway with two foot shoulders. Along Ocean, a four foot asphalt concrete walk will be laid adjacent to the road. Parts of the walkway are now unpaved and parts in need of repair.

The project also calls for improved drainage facilities near the high school.

The streets involved are portions of Camino Del Monte, Carmel Hills Drive, Doris Watson Place and Ocean Avenue. The Ocean Avenue portion will start at the city limits east of Carpenter, where city work was recently completed.

The project will also abut state improvement of the Ocean Avenue-Highway 1 intersection, also scheduled this summer.

Although the city, county and state work in the vicinity are separate projects, they have been designed to interlock, said McClain.

"There was no point in combining contracts, the work was just too varied," he said. "However, we've keyed our plans to the other projects."

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the clerk of the board of supervisors, Monterey County Courthouse, Salinas, until May 27 at 2:30 p.m.

Construction will probably start around June 1, said McClain, and continue through the month.

He said that traffic on each road would be rerouted or closed only for about a day of that time.

He estimated the cost of the project at $15,000.

The state Department of Public Works announced last week that a low bid of $77,689 was submitted by Steiny and Company, Inc., of San Francisco, for the intersection work.

The project includes installation of a new signalling system and construction of holding lanes for automobiles making left turns.

KKG LUNCHEON

Kappa Kappa Gamma alumnae in this area will meet at 12:30 next Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Ruth Watson of Carmel. Salads and desserts will be provided for the "bring-your-own-sandwich" luncheon. Interested Kappas in the vicinity are welcome and may call Mrs. Robert G. Morris, 624-6104 for additional information.

RUTH SOLOMON interacts with 30-foot length of garden hose during "Reinforced Concrete" sequence.

'Embryo' to bring light, movement and sound to Sunset May 29

Carmel's first major light show is scheduled May 29 as part of the "Embryo" multimedia performance at Sunset Center.

The show consists of mixed movement, sound and "kinetic play of polarized light and projected effects." That's the light show part of the program.

The show is performed by three University of California at Santa Cruz instructors, Keith Muscutt, Eric Regener and Ruth Solomon.

Muscutt, a lecturer and technician in dramatic art, produces the visual environment through the use of polarized light projections. Shown on screens on stage, the projections give the effect of organic forms in a process of growth.

Mrs. Solomon, a former member of the Jean Erdman Dance Theater who is currently establishing a dance program at the university, has choreographed movement to interweave with the projected forms. She performs both solo and with a number of her students in three of the show's four sections.

Sound is provided by a Moog Synthesizer operated by Regener, director of the univeristy's electronic music studio and teacher of music theory and composition. During one section of the program, entitled "Crystals," Muscutt and Regener relate sound and light in the sort of spontaneous creative process associated with jazz music.

The three instructors have developed the program in their spare ttme in recent months. They have performed portions at the university and gave their first invitational concert at Cabrillo College last month.

Sunset Center manager Frank Riley and stage manager Richard Brace viewed the Cabrillo performance and subsequently invited the group to Carmel.

Although the performances so far have been well received, curiously no one has yet attempted a review of "Embryo."

"People react to it on the level of feeling more than the intellect," Mrs. Solomon says.

Mrs. Solomon, who visited Carmel last week, stresses that the performance is a developed work of art, despite its improvisational aspects. For example, she distinguishes the light show from the type of work presented at rock concerts, where chance is a major element of the performance.

"We've tried to pull our performance into a totality," she says. "We want to be responsible for what's happening on stage."

In addition to "Crystals," the first part of the program features "Triptych" and "Symbiosis." "Triptych" incorporates the Moog, light show and movement with one live and two projected dancers. The light show, projected on three screens, is created by a half-dozen machines which Muscutt has constructed especially to suit his purposes.

"Symbiosis" involves a grand piano and dancer. Mrs. Solomon claims she works in, around and on top of the piano.

Does she actually get in the piano?

"Well, practically," she replies.

Following intermission, the troupe performs "Reinforced Concrete," a work in eight parts which is a thematic take-off on "concrete poetry," the written art form which owes its impact as much to unusual typography as words.

Heart assn. offers special heart attack training

PARTICIPANTS IN A SPECIAL COURSE being given at Monterey Peninsula College in cooperation with the Central Mission Trails Heart Association must demonstrate proficiency in cardiopulmonary resuscitation to get credit for the work. Since early March, 25 students have been enrolled in an experimental course called "Understanding the Heart Patient" aimed at training nurses, fire department personnel, convalescent hospital and retirement home employees and others to recognize a heart attack and become adept in the preventive care of potential coronary patients. Practicing resuscitation on a training manikin: (left to right) Mrs. Barbara Simpson of Carmel, R.N., assistant head nurse of Community Hospital; Capt. Thomas Campbell, training officer of the Salinas Fire Department; Mrs. Anne Warren of Carmel, R.N., head nurse at Driftwood Convalescent Hospital, Monterey; and Mrs. Margery Mann of Carmel, supervising public health nurse, Monterey Visiting Nurse Assn. Mrs. Simpson is practicing mouth-to-mouth breathing, while Mrs. Mann applies closed chest heart compression. The other two are observing their techniques.

First phase of city tree survey near

The city's tree survey is about three-quarters through the first phase—a count of trees on a random sample of city-owned property, according to City Forester Robert Tate.

The sample accounts for about one-fifth of total city property. Tate estimates 2,000 trees will be tabulated in the initial survey area.

The next step in the survey is to count the trees on private property. Again, about one-fifth of the total will be counted. The remaining four-fifths will be surveyed in the next three or four years.

Tate says the first year's tabulation, while incomplete, will still provide valuable data which the forestry department can use to better care for the city forest.

The survey, carried out by forestry students, John Taormina and Greg Stickler, locates a tree by block number, determines its species, diameter and the method by which it has been trimmed, from the ground or by climbing.

Typically, ground trimming is carried out by homeowners and climb trimming by professionals, says Tate. By determining how many trees have been cut by climbing within a given time span, the department will be able to estimate how much time will be needed to trim all trees.

Only the eight most commonly grown species of trees in Carmel are being listed. Others fall under a miscellaneous category.

The surveyors are also checking for root damage from street work, insect infestation, past damage from insects or disease. Trees near asphalt with a radius of less than a foot of breathing space are also listed.

A final factual checkpoint is the number of dead limbs in the top of a tree.

The trees are also judged for their general appearance.

"I know that's a subjective criteria, but people look at the city forest subjectively," says Tate.

The first one-fifth of the survey, including both city and private property, will be completed in about three weeks, says Tate. Preparation of the data for computer will require another month.

"We'll be able to ask for data—let's say, the location of trees with more than 50 percent dead limbs—and get the answer in seconds," says Tate.

If you want to find out the phone number of someone with a different Area Code from yours, here's the quickest way to get it: just dial "1" then that person's Area Code plus 555-1212. A Directory Assistance Operator in that distant area will give you the number you want. This service applies anywhere in the continental U.S. and parts of Canada and is available free of extra charge.

THE ANNUAL KQED Auction is in progress once again. The "GO Getters," a committee for KQED's Auction, will be asking the support of their communities in preparation for the annual auction to be televised from the Cow Palace, San Francisco, May 21 through May 30..

Last year the auction raised $368,000.00 to help meet KQED's operating expenses. KQED is not supported by advertising revenue, but by public contributions and memberships. The station that presents Sesame Street, Civilisation, The Churchills, and many other wonderful programs needs your support.

Now that the Monterey Peninsula Cable is extending its coverage, many people have expressed their delight at being able to view Channel 9. I hope the entire Peninsula will support the KQED "GO Getters".

In the long run we will gain more than we will ever give. It is up to all of us to welcome the "GO Getters" and give them our wholehearted support. They need you and KQED needs the support of the Monterey Peninsula.

the mayor's report

By BARNEY LAIOLO

I WONDER how many people really realize how lucky we are. How many communities of under 5,000 inhabitants have anything similar to our Sunset Cultural Center? Take last weekend, for example—on Friday night I attended a program sponsored by Y.A.F.A. (Young Adults for Action). For those who did not attend I might offer a few words. This program brought to the Carmel people a part of society that is little known and sometimes criticized. True, the program was presented with the thought of educating the public on what Y.A.F.A. does, and also to solicit support. Any program that has a goal of helping to rehabilitate ex-convicts and others to a useful purpose is worthy of support. The entertainment segment of this presentation was excellently performed, even though a little short on this end. Given a little time, I think they will correct this problem.

Then came Saturday and Sunday. The patio and parking area were alive—alive with a fantastic assortment of plants, flowers, shrubs and several correlated displays and PEOPLE. There was food for those who were so inclined. What was all this about? It was the Garden Fair under the sponsorship of the All Saints' Episcopal Day School. What better use could we make of this beautiful spot—and it's ours! The pleasant relaxed feeling of people poking their nose here and there and taking home something to plant in their gardens. Why? To beautify their home and spruce up our city. I hope more people come up with uses similar to this and lets get the "village feeling" going. Aren't we lucky we live here? I sure think so.

Hasta la vista!

P.S. Talking about the "village feeling," why don't you bring your lunch next Wednesday to Sunset Center and enjoy a little relaxation in a different atmosphere?

Remember, also, the Multi-Media Show "Embryo" coming on May 29. From all reports this should be a very interesting and exciting type of presentation. The new techniques in light and sound patterns might stimulate you. I wonder what my reaction will be?

P.P.S. If anyone has an old piano they would like to donate to Sunset, it would be put to good use.

Thanks.

Hospital Auxiliary ladies to work while spectators enjoy May 29

The Gwenn Graham Concours on May 29 at Pebble Beach is assured of having on display more than 100 classic and European automobiles on the lawn in front of Del Monte Lodge.

While the exhibitors vie for awards, members of the Monterey Peninsula Community Hospital Auxiliary spend the entire day selling tickets and posters. As the Auxiliary benefits from all proceeds of tickets and posters, these hard working members will be selling the new Concours poster, created by noted Carmel cartoonist Eldon Dedini.

They will also be selling tickets for the day-long event which are $2.50 each. Each ticket includes a chance to win their unique gate prize, a 1926 Peugeot which was donated to the Auxiliary by Dr. and Mrs. Lot D. Howard jr. of Pebble Beach. The winning ticket will be drawn at 4 p.m. following the presentation of trophies.

Chairman of the Auxiliary's Concours committee is Mrs. Rody Holt of Carmel. Her committee members include: Mrs. Lynn Cox, Mrs. Paul Bizzini, Mrs. Harold Nielsen, Mrs. Church Chappell, Mrs. William Schultz, Mrs. Luke Shields, Mrs. Dennis Tedford, Mrs. Douglas Brown, Mrs. Ralph W. Thompson, Mrs. Charles Rau, Mrs. Clyde Hall, Mrs. Arthur Benoit, Mrs. Harry Lusignan, Mrs. Joseph Richardson, Mrs. Harold Isaacson, Miss Joan Peacock and Mrs. Hans Gaare.

Spectators should plan to spend the entire day at the show. Judging of cars will begin at 10:30 with class awards to be given throughout the course of the day.

The winner's circle will be located at the west side of the concours area and from here the overall winner will be selected.

CAPT. AND MRS. MORRIS E. RUDDICK

Carol Hunziker marries Marine officer

Carol Suzanne Hunziker, Carmel High School counselor, married Morris E. Ruddick, Jr., a captain in the U.S. Marine Corps, recently at the Naval Postgraduate School Protestant Chapel.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth White of Fullerton, Calif., and the groom's Mr. and Mrs. Morris E. Ruddick of Mahwah, N.J.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Judith Hart of Monterey and the flower girls, Wendy Suzanne, Trisha Jane and Melissa Lynn Hunziker, the bride's three daughters.

Capt. James Perkins of Quantico, Va., was best man.

A honeymoon in Mexico is planned in July.

Residence will be established in Norfolk, Va., where the groom will be a Scuba instructor for the Corps.

The bride, who holds a B.A. from the University of Arizona and an M.A. from Arizona State, has worked for a year counseling and handling student personnel work at the high school.

The groom graduated in 1965 with a B.A. degree in speech and communications from Northwestern University.

Letters

Dear Editor:

Recently, I had the opportunity of listening to Mrs. Charlie Knight address a group of university women. Mrs. Knight is a credit to her race—any race. She is highly intelligent, very well educated and has a cause. She is a worthy successor to Dr. Martin Luther King, jr. She was a black in white and a living example that black is beautiful.

Then, I read the fulsome coverage THE PINE CONE gave to the group of Young Adults for Action, who drove into Carmel with a chip on their shoulders; like this Lee Toler, who describes the difference between Carmel and Seaside as heaven and hell. Why? Because we keep our streets clean, have trees planted down Ocean Avenue and a local business organization has planted flowering shrubs along the center strip? Seaside could do the same with enough pride and ambition.

When I first saw Seaside some 25 years ago, it surely was a slum area, but now it is a pleasure to drive along its well paved streets, notice rows after rows of well painted homes, front yards transformed into bright gardens. The children are well and cleanly dressed.

I taught a group of small children to make pieced quilts one summer recently and all those children received a well cooked generous lunch free of cost.

To quote Lee Toler again: "Over there they have everything they need. Here everybody needs something." How does he know? Carmel is largely occupied by retired poeple, who, like myself, as the result of their own hard work, thrift and industry have earned this pleasant retirement place. None of us go yelping for welfare. We've earned our own way. Nobody ever helped me.

And as to this "black women in white dresses...Seaside is cheap labor pool for Carmel's houses, hotels and motels," I never earned as much as $2. an hour.

I know a colored maid who proudly earns $2. an hour. She is not too long from Alabama and has made Seaside and Carmel her Land of Opportunity. She has a nice looking ittle red car to drive to her various jobs and is now buying a home. In addition to that, she is learning to be a nurse—to pull herself up on the social scale; and more power to her.

I have no sympathy with these "poor mouths" who think the world owes them a living. Let them work, and study and qualify for a better job and they'll find one.

(MRS.) PATRICIA HALL
Box 2012, Carmel

To the Editor:

In September there will be ten students attending Carmel High School who are from outside the Carmel School District. We have been assured that there will be no cost to the local taxpayer.

The A.B.C. (A Better Chance) Program estimates its cost to be approximately $30,000 or $3000 per student each year. Two thirds of this amount will be furnished by a grant from a foundation. The remaining $10,000 must (first?) be raised by the local community. Of course it will cost us nothing...

The Carmel School board has waived residency requirements to make this possible. They have also approved the expense "in terms of instruction, supplies and transportation required for the ten additional students.

Of course it will cost...nothing?

Children's Theatre Festival coming to Forest Theatre

The annual Children's Theatre festival of performances will be held on the weekends of May 29-30 and June 5-6 at Forest Theatre in Carmel.

Every year the Children's Experimental Theatre presents spring productions for all age levels as a gift to the community. This year the theme of Greek mythology runs through the class productions.

The myth of Pandora's Box, called "The Paradise of Children" will be presented by three different casts in the third and fourth grades.

The second production will be "Baucis and Philemon," a legendary story concerning a magic pitcher and a kindly old couple in the cruelest village in the world.

The excitement and terror of "The Beast in the Maze" retells the story of Theseus and the Minotaur and an ancient earthquake on the island of Crete.

The Senior High School Class production recounts a little known incident from the Illiad: a moment before the Trojan War when Achilles, the hero, almost stayed at home and the Trojan war almost didn't take place. It is called "The Hall of Women."

A bonus production added to the season of Greek stories will be The Young Actors Company's performance of George Bernard Shaw's "Man of Destiny."

Performance times will be announced later.

The four class plays were written and directed by Marcia Gambrell Hovick, costumed by Loel Shuler, and sets and lighting designed by William Lewis.

Those who desire further information about the plays may obtain it by calling Children's Experimental Theatre at 624-1531.

Pvt. Richard P. Romm, son of George R. Romm of Carmel, is stationed at Fort Ord, training under the modern Volunteer Army Field Experiment. Pvt. Romm entered the Army last March and is due to complete the program, called Volar, in mid-July.

DUO OF GIRLS

The stork dropped daughters for two Carmel families earlier this month. Diana Lynn is at home with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stefano, having been born May 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Davis welcomed their first child, Leigh Ann, on May 7. Says her mother, "She had Daddy wrapped around her little finger in three hours!"

NEW GRANDMA

Mrs. Anna Katz became a grandmother for the first time May 11 when a daughter, Lisa Anna, was born to her son and daughter-in-law, Martin and Georgia Anderson Katz.

Del Monte dog show coming May 30

The 46th annual Del Monte Dog Show will be held Sunday, May 30 at Collins Polo Field in Pebble Beach.

A sanctioned American Kennel Club show, 2200 dogs representing over 150 breeds will be judged.

The 24 judges from throughout the United States and England will begin their considerations at 8 a.m., first considering the best dog in breed in the show.

These winners will compete within their six respective classes: sporting, hounds, working dogs, terriers, toys and non-sporting. Mr. O.C. Harriman of Pebble Beach will judge the Best in Show, from the winners of the six classes.

The Del Monte Dog Show is considered one of the prestige dog shows in the United States, with the finest dogs in the country always entered in competition.

The show is the second oldest annual sporting event in the United States (the Kentucky Derby being the oldest).

There is no admission to the dog show, except the 17 Mile Drive gate fee. Breakfast and lunch, catered by the Del Monte Lodge, will be available at a pavilion at Collins Field.

The Del Monte Kennel Club, as part of their annual show, is holding a two breed specialty show Saturday, May 29 at Collins Polo Field, beginning at noon, with Afghans and Whippets being judged.

After the judging, the Whippets will race, chasing a mechanical rabbit the length of the field.

FOUR HAND PIANO CONCERT

The Carmel Foundation will present Angie Machado and Frederick Schaad on Wednesday afternoon, May 26 at 2:30 p.m. in the Parish Hall of All Saints' Epsicopal Church in Carmel in a four-hand piano recital. These well-known local artists have included in their program Beethoven's Sonata in D Major, six liebeslieder waltzes by Brahms, Sonatina in G Major by Kuhlau, and two pieces by Debussy.

All Foundation members as well as the public are cordially invited to hear this interesting program and to meet Miss Machado and Mr. Schaad at tea at Town House following the concert.

From exchange student Karen Stuart:

Letters from Down Under

Carmel High School student Karen Stuart is spending a year in Australia as an American Field Service exchangee. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stuart, 3520 Oliver Road, Carmel, and is attending Norwood school near Adelaide on the south coast of the Down Under continent. Excerpts from letters home give a good picture of her enjoyment of the exchange experience.

"You would love it. You look at the mountains and see green, green, green! Windmill, horses, cows, a train and more green. On one side of the road you can look down a cliff to sea crashing against straight-up rocks and on the other side are the green trees, meadows, grazing horses — no houses, no telephone poles. It's great!" That was the description of the countryside just outside Sydney.

And on clothing—"You know how we were worrying about my clothes being too short? Well, I feel like an old hag in some of my shortest dresses. Everyone, no matter the condition of their legs, wears their dress about four inches above mid thigh (that's thigh and not knee.) And, if there isn't four inches above the middle of the thigh, you still wear it there.

"I've found that the only answer to 'Where are you from in America?' is to say California. Anything like Carmel, or Monterey, or near San Francisco, is wasted. And, when you say California you are almost always asked if you have ever seen any movie stars. Since I can truthfully say I have, I'm a little bit of a celebrity.

"Point of interest: at the zoo the other day I noticed that little kids don't say 'Polly, want a cracker?' Instead, they say, 'Corky want a cup of tea?'

"School is very different. Much more strict. No jewelry, hair tied back in pigtails, a certain type of shoes and stockings, no makeup, and uniforms. Millions and millions of rules and millions and millions and millions of ways to get around them. My courses include geography, history (we're going to be spending more time on the American Revolution and I'm afraid that I'm expected to know something about it!) biology, English and classical studies of ancient Greece and Rome.

"In history we'll be studying the Renaissance, the Reformation, the English, French and American revolutions, the Industrial Revolution, Europe after Waterloo, Russia from mid-19th Century, and World Wars I and II. In Classical Studies there will be The Odyssey, Virgil's Anaeid and some of Euripedes' plays. In English we will study Antony and Cleopatra, Hardy's Return of the Native, and others such as Major Barbara, "Goodbye to All That" and some of the American poets. Biology begins at just about where I left off at Carmel — with genetics.

"There was this huge festival in Adelaide with, I guess, some 200,000 people there. There was also one little girl there who had to get up in front of all those people. Mr. Dunstan, the Premier of South Australia (he's like Ronald Reagan is to California except here there are only six states instead of 50), introduced me and, contrary to what I had been led to expect, then handed me the mike. Have you ever been in front of two times 100 times 1000 people with absolutely nothing to say and no voice to say it with? I must have mumbled something because there was applause, but I don't know what.

"Hey, did you know I have an accent? It's great because everyone pays a lot more attention to what you say. Then they say, 'Oh, what a lovely accent you have.' Me: An accent?

"People laugh when they hear the phrase 'Down under.' They say that we're the ones that are upside down.

"I'll be going to Melbourne soon to a reunion of Australian kids who have been to the U.S. as exchanges. And then to a sheep station (that's a ranch)."

KQED tv auction gets plenty of local support

The KQED Auction May 21 through May 30 will be televised on our Cable Channel 3 from the Cow Palace. Dozens of volunteers will man the telephones accepting bids.

The annual TV marathon is the major fund-raising event for educational channel 9, San Francisco. Viewers are invited to bid on a wide variety of merchandise or services. The receipts benefit KQED, the non-commercial TV station, which is entirely listener supported.

Mrs. Max Picard, of Rancho Rio Vista, Peninsula Chairman, said: "The Peninsula has outdone itself. With the support of hotels, restaurants, golf and tennis clubs, tickets to our most special events, as well as donations from merchants, we have been able to put together the most exciting package deals."

Getting married: The acution will offer for bid the wedding chapel, complete floral arrangements, the reception room, wedding cake, wedding pictures, a hotel for the weekend and even a lovely pegnoir for the bride.

Music lovers will have a chance to bid on a Bach Festival weekend with a charming hotel and restaurant included... or a weekend for the Monterey Jazz Festival or season tickets to the Monterey County Symphony.

Are you a tennis buff, a golfer or crazy about car races? The hotels and restaurants have cooperated so you will have a choice of the greatest weekends possible.

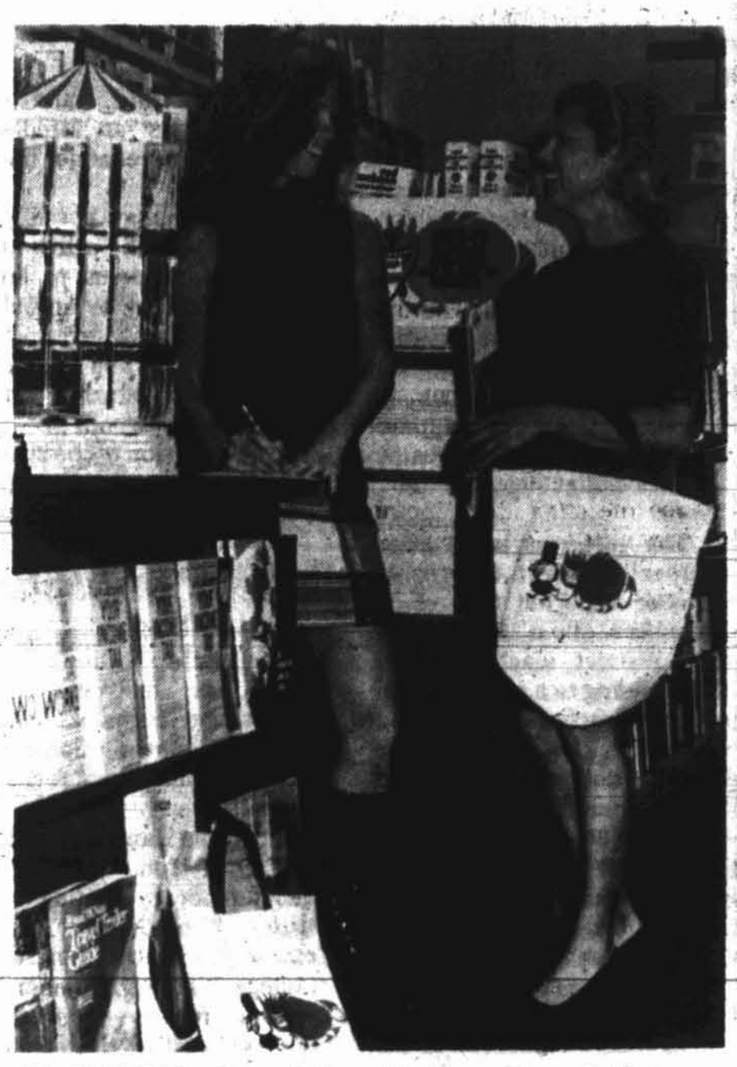
Imagine being able to bid on Sponsor tickets for the 1972 U.S. Open with hotel reservations for a week!

And as is always the case, our local artists have been most generous in donating many of their paintings.

Love Hawaii? We're able to offer that, too. Always wanted to take a course in sculpture? Be a skin diver? Spend a great weekend at the Salinas Rodeo? Enjoy a weekend in December at a beautiful hotel and see a show put on by our finest craftsmen and go to the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art for their Festival of Trees plus golf? You'll get a chance to bid on that, too.

"How lucky can a chairman be?" said Mrs. Picard, "to have such a wonderful committee of go-getters who made all of this possible."

Many of them will be working for the KQED Auction at the Cow Palace and will be seen on television.



GO-GETTERS: Two of the volunteers who solicited merchandise and other gifts for the KQED Auction which starts Friday are Mrs. Edward Bernstein (left) of Carmel and Mrs. Ted Lake of Carmel Valley. They are shown in the Wells Bookstore in Carmel collecting goodies which will be auctioned to benefit the listener-supported San Francisco TV station (photo by George T.C. Smith).

Annual high school band concert on Friday

The Carmel High School Music Department under the direction of Henry Avila will present its annual Spring Concert Friday at 8 p.m. in the Donald Craig Gymnasium.

Corporal punishment barred in Carmel schools

Although a majority of the teachers at Carmel Middle School and one trustee don't like it, corporal punishment is no longer allowed in the Carmel Unified School District.

The Board of Education, with Trustee Steven Sassoon absent, at its meeting last week voted three-to-one to drop corporal punishment from its board rules. Trustee James Miller cast the "no" vote.

The vote was taken after Superintendent Harris A. Taylor reported that of 36 teachers (about 25 percent of the district teaching staff) responding to a survey taken by the teachers' negotiating council, 30 opposed the eradication of the corporal punishment rule.

Of the 30, 27 (out of a total staff of 37) were teachers at Middle School. Taylor said those teachers felt the corporal punishment provision served as a deterent.

Because 75 percent of the district's teachers "Didn't feel strongly enough about the issue to respond" to the survey, Taylor said, "I don't feel this survey really told you that much."

Mrs. Robert Oross of Carmel Valley disagreed. "I think those who showed the courtesy to answer should be acknowledged," she said, and those who didn't shouldn't be.

Board President Richard Wilsdon said that he had stated "categorically" before the survey was taken that he was opposed to corporal punishment, and that he would still be so even if "100 percent of the teachers" felt the other way.

"I still feel we can change the board rule," Trustee Hilton Bialek said, "and if anarchy reigns at Middle School we can change the rule again."

Miller said that possibly the rule, which allowed corporal punishment to be administered only by school principals, was needed only at Middle School, and "at the high school it's certainly not going to do any good."

The new version of the rule now states, "When conditions warrant, a certified staff mamber may impose reasonable punishment upon students. However, corporal punishment is not to be utilized."

The new rule also allows classified personnel, when undertaking supervisory duties, to "impose reasonable punishment when certified staff members are not present," and bus drivers, when conditions warrant, to "take disciplinary action."

Sullens publishes fourth textbook

Dr. Idelle Sullens of Carmel, an instructor in English and humanities at Monterey Peninsula College, has published her fourth textbook.

Just off the Random House press, Dr. Sullens' anthology of contemporary writings is entitled "The Whole Idea Catalog," with the subtitle, "College Writing Projects." Designed for use in freshman composition courses in colleges and universities, the book contains essays, articles and reportage by such writers as Tom Wolfe, Paul R. Ehrlich and George Wald, plus instructions—based on the writing techniques exemplified by the readings—of "how to go about putting together an essay."

Also used are cartoons—including one by "Little Man on Campus" creator Richard Bibler, an art instructor at MPC—photographs and advertisements illustrating the current "scene."

The readings are grouped under such headings as "The Drug Subculture," "Interlude: On Revolution" and "The War Business."

Dr. Sullens' earlier books are "Principles of Grammar," published in 1966; "The Inquiring Reader" (co-edited by MPC instructors Ray Fabrizio and Edith Karas), 1967, and "The Inquiring Reader Essays," 1969.

SUNSET GUITAR CLASSES POPULAR

A second series of folk guitar lessons began at Sunset Center in Carmel last week. Having completed two series of classes for beginners on May 4, Mrs. Mildred Kline began teaching two new series on the 5th.

From 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. each Wednesday for eight consecutive weeks a class for beginners will be conducted. A second class for intermediates—those who have completed a beginners course—follows at 8:30 and runs to 9:30 p.m. Enrollment in the beginner's class is full, and no more students can be accepted; but there is still room for two or three more players in the intermediate division.

Young Carmel-born opera singer featured at Music Society concert

The Carmel Music Society has announced that its annual meeting concert, Friday, May 21, will feature one of Carmel's own young artists, Vincent Russo.

The final concert of each season, which is free to the public, features a promising young California artist and is aimed at furthering the careers of these young artists. This concert concludes an exciting musical year for the Society.

Russo was born in Carmel and started studying voice at the age of 17 with Nancy Ness Bowman, one of the members of the board of directors of the Music Society. He studied with her for six years and performed extensively with the Monterey Peninsula Opera Workshop, under the direction of Mrs. Bowman, for four years.

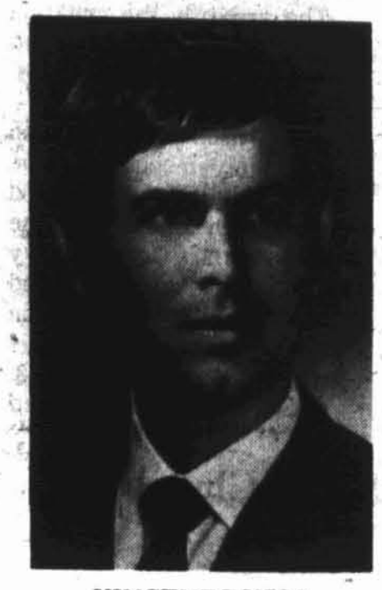
After receiving his Associate of Arts degree from Monterey Peninsula College, Russo continued his musical education at San Francisco State College where he earned his bachelor's degree under Dewey Camp and his master's degree in voice and vocal literature under John Large.

In 1969 he was the winner of the Alexander Saunderson Award for the most promising young singer in the Metropolitan Opera Auditions in San Francisco. During the same year he won the Men's Division of the California Young Artists Auditions of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Russo is a member of the San Francisco Opera Guild Talent Bank. During the past year he performed with the San Diego International Opera Studio under Jan Popper.

Starting in August he will be singing with the Santa Fe Opera Company.

Russo will be accompanied by Karen Millar who earned her master's degree in music at San Francisco State College. She is a piano student of Carlo Bussotti. For several years, Miss Millar was staff accompanist at San Francisco State College. Recently she was the accompanist for the Metropolitan Opera Auditions in San Francisco.



VINCENT RUSSO

There will be a short business meeting prior to the concert which begins at 8:30 at Sunset Auditorium in Carmel.

CHICO DEGREES

Four students from Carmel are candidates for bachelors degrees at Chico State College, with commencement exercises scheduled for June 5.

The candidates and their majors are: Anne Nickele, physical education; John H. Rennels, business management; Michael D. Vonkleist, social science; and Judith L. Willert, physical education.

IN MEDITERRANEAN

Navy Seaman Jean P. Fodor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Fodor of Carmel, is aboard the amphibious landing ship USS Spiegel Grove, which is taking part in the NATO training exercise "Dawn Patrol 71" in the Mediterranean Sea.

CHEER LEADER

Kathie Harbert of Carmel has been chosen one of the cheer leaders at Northern Arizona University for the 1971-72 school year.

Padres clinch tie for MTAL baseball crown

Carmel High School's varsity baseball team clinched a tie for the Mission Trails Athletic League championship Tuesday by beating Pacific Grove 5-1.

The Padres can win the championship tomorrow at San Lorenzo Valley in their last regularly scheduled league game. Game time is 4:30 p.m.

Carmel scored two runs in the first inning against the Breakers as Jim Conlan walked, stole second and moved to third on Jim DeAmaral's infield hit. DeAmaral then stole second.

With men on second and third with two outs, Ross Meiklejohn hit a ground ball up the middle which the Pacific Grove shortstop bobbled. Conlan scored from third and DeAmaral, displaying what Carmel coach Monty Feekes called "fine base running," scored from second by sliding past the throw home.

Carmel scored three additional runs in the sixth inning as Ray Miller and Gary Carpenter walked and Steve Hare singled to load the bases.

With one out, Conlan walked to force in a run and Steve Wilson doubled to the left field corner to score Carpenter from third and Hare from second.

"It was a real big cluth hit," said Feekes.

Pacific Grove scored their run in the sixth on a walk and single off Jerry Argust and a Carmel error.

Argust, a sophomore, allowed two hits, struck out 15 and walked one for his ninth victory against no defeats this year.

The victory gave Carmel an 11-2 win-loss record and maintained their game lead over the nearest challenger, Hollister, which is 10-3. Hollister plays Friday against Marello.

Carmel defeated San Lorenzo Valley 12-5 earlier this year.

If a play-off is required between Carmel and Holister, in the event that the Padres lose tomorrow and Hollister wins, it will probably take place Monday, said Feekes.

The winner of the Mission Trails Athletic League will enter the coast counties playoff Tuesday versus the winner of the Coast Athletic League playoff tomorrow, Robert Louis Stevenson or Menlo.

McGINNIS TRAVEL CONTINUES SERVICE

In response to inquiries about the fate of Bob McGinnis Travel following Mr. McGinnis' recent death, Mrs. McGinnis announced this week that the business will continue with as few changes as possible.

Mary Lou McKenzie, newly appointed manager, will direct the Carmel Rancho shopping center agency along with two other continuing staff members, Carla McCarthy and Margaret Leach.

"We're not selling, we're not closing our front doors, we're going on with the agency as near to what it has been as possible," said Miss McKenzie.

The agency has been in operation six years.

THALER GETS B.A.

Gwendolyn J. Thaler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Thaler, 4170 Marguerita Way, Carmel, was awarded a bachelors degree in commencement exercises from the University of Portland, Oregon, in the Civic Auditorium recently.

Miss Thaler received her degree in psychology from the College of Arts and Sciences at the University.

Youth Caravan Singers to present folk musical at First Baptist

The youth and music departments of the First Baptist Church of Carmel will present the 55-voice Youth Caravan Singers Sunday at 7 p.m. at the church.

The singers, directed by Lyle Richardson, are from the First Presbyterian Church in San Mateo.

Their presentation is a folk musical, "Tell It Like It Is."

The performance is the first of the Caravan's summer tour.

The group is the creation of Richardson, a naturalized U.S. citizen born in Kingston, Ontario, Canada.

Richardson's education was largely in schools in the eastern U.S. and he earned his bachelor's degree at the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music. He also attended the Academy of Vocal Arts in that city and made his concert debut in April, 1958.

Richardson has toured Europe in concert four times and has sung all over the United States and Canada.

He came to California in 1962 and since that time has been dedicated to what he calls "significant sacred song."

The first part of the Caravan's program features "Miserere Mei" by Antonio Lotti, "Jubilate Deo" by Gordon Young and "Praise Ye the Lord" by Peter Tschaikovsky.

Richardson will sing selected solos accompanied on the piano by Stanley Weichert during the second part of the program.

The concluding portion of the evening is the folk musical, "Tell It Like It Is," for soloists and chorus.

Annual All Saints Church rummage sale May 20

The Annual Spring Rummage Sale of All Saints' Church, Carmel, will be held Thursday, May 20 from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. This large and popular event, a Peninsula "institution," is held in the Parish Hall and Patio at Lincoln and Ninth and offers 17 different departments, including men, women, and children's clothing, accessories, housewares and furniture, antique and new items, and plants.

A lunch bar will serve from 11-2, and a free baby-sitting service will be available all day.

Chairman of the sale is Mrs. R.W. Schleffler, assisted by the following chairmen: Mmes. Karl Scherer, Ralph Thompson, Elmer Gran, Ron Nickelsen, Carvel Baldwin, David Davis, Russell Townsend, Edwin Ewig, Charles Leachman, V. Jackson, J.E. McEldowney, Catherine Simard, Fred Titgen, Ralph Forbes, David Hayes, William Lawson, and Miss Elizabeth White, Mr. Eldon Dedini, Col. Scherer and Mr. Richard Bennett.

Donations of rummage are welcome and pick-up may be arranged by calling Mrs. R.W. Schleffler, 624-3057 or Mrs. Karl Scherer, 375-7223.

Support of this old and sound way of re-cycling goods will benefit various community-oriented projects, says Mrs. Schleffler.

LOCAL TEACHERS TO BE HONORED

Three retiring Monterey Peninsula Unified School District teachers from Carmel will be honored at a public tea Sunday from 2-4 p.m. in the Estrada Adobe, Monterey.

Mrs. Richard (Nellie "Kay") Louis of La Mesa School is retiring after 13 years with the district; Mrs. Hal (Elizabeth) Ewart of Walter Colton Junior High School after 22 years, 16 as school librarian; and Mrs. Hally Irving, Fitch Junior High School, 10 years.

The three teachers join four others in the district who are being awarded certificates of appreciation.

At the same meeting, two scholarships to future teachers will be presented by the Monterey Bay Teachers Association. Mrs. Connie Downer of Carmel is 1970-71 president of the organization and Mrs. Irene Broadman, who lives in Carmel and teaches at La Mesa School, is scholarship chairman.

SUMMER SCHEDULE FOR RECREATION

The 1971 summer recreation program of the Carmel Unified School District, headed up by Charles Dawson, will again include such activities and athletics for young and old as badminton and basketball, playground and physical fitness, tennis and dance, volleyball and swimming.

The regular recreation program which was approved last week by the board of education will begin June 21 and conclude July 30. The swimming program will be broken up into two four-week sessions – June 21 through July 16 and July 19 through August 13.

LESLIE

Laurence Leslie died recently after being stricken in his Carmel home. He was 76 years old.

Mr. Leslie was born in Scotland. He came to the Peninsula in 1913, living in Monterey and Pacific Grove before moving to Carmel.

He was a member of Pacific Grove Lodge 331, F&AM.

Mr. Leslie is survived by his widow, Elizabeth, of Carmel; a daughter, Mrs. Joann Madler of Carmel; two sisters, Joann Leslie and Mrs. Jessie Gordon of Scotland; two brothers, Adam and James Leslie of Scotland; and seven grandchildren.

Masonic services were held at Paul Funeral Chapel.

Concluding services were scheduled in Lerwick, Shetland Islands, Scotland, under the direction of Duncan and Bolt, Ltd.

MacPHERSON

Kenneth Alexander MacPherson, a Carmel resident for the past 22 years, died recently in a local convalescent hospital after a lengthy illness. He was 73 years old.

Mr. MacPherson was born Sept. 23, 1897, in Grand Forks, N.D. He attended the University of Chicago, where he was a member of Psi Epsilon fraternity.

He served in the U.S. Navy during Word War I as an ensign and was awarded the Navy Cross.

He served with the Hoover Food Relief Administration from 1920 to 1926 in Berlin and Hamburg, Germany, and Kiev, Russia. In Kiev, he was honored by the Jewish community for his services.

Mr. MacPherson worked 28 years as a merchandising and buying executive with the Sears, Roebuck Co. in Chicago.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sally MacPherson of Carmel; a daughter, Mrs. John S. Fullerton of Garden City, N.Y.; and two grandchildren.

Private family services were held at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea, in Pacific Grove with the Rev. H.M.M. Nicholas officiating. Inurnment followed at El Carmelo Cemetery with Paul Mortuary in charge.

Contributions are preferred to the cancer therapy unit at Community Hospital, P.O. Box HH, Carmel.

COHEN

Douglas Bray Cohen, a Carmel resident since 1966, died recently in a local hospital after a period of failing health. He was 79 years old.

Mr. Cohen was born in Oakland.

He graduated in 1917 from the University of California where he was a member of the Chi Phi fraternity and the Big C Society. He played football.

Mr. Cohen managed the Stewart Tract, a farming community near Tracy, for 36 years. After his retirement, he moved to Carmel at a home on Taylor.

He was appointed to the State Reclamation Board by Governor Earl Warren and served 15 years. He joined the Sutter Club of Sacramento.

Mr. Cohen is survived by his widow, Marjorie Burton Cohen of Carmel; two daughters, Mrs. Barbara Donald of Berkeley and Mrs. Marjorie Schma of Pebble Beach; two sisters, Emelita Cohen and Mrs. Matrion Marion Gilliland, both of Oakland; 10 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Mission Mortuary handled arrangements.

Contributions are preferred to the cancer treatment center at the Community Hsopital, Box HH, Carmel, or another charity.

MAURY

George Lawrence Maury, a frequent visitor to Carmel, where he owned a home on Torres between Eighth and Ninth, died in an auto accident in the Bay area last week. He was 48 years old.

Mr. Maury, who was an electroencephalograph operator in Oakland, visited Carmel several times a month. He enjoyed working on his house.

He is survived by his widow, Marjorie, and their two children.

Our Churches

First Baptist

Gene Powell, who is with the Navigators, will be guest speaker Sunday at the 11 a.m. service at the First Baptist Church of Carmel.

Kathy Freres will attend a laboratory school in Jewish evangelism next month in New York.

The program is sponsored by the Bible Christian Union.

A send-off salad luncheon will be given by the church ladies at noon today at the church.

Wayfarer

Anyone interested in helping the Red Cross meet the need for 200 dozen cookies for the Fort Ord hospital should bring their cookie contributions to the church office before 5 p.m. Monday.

The cookies should be wrapped in foil or placed in sealed containers.

The project is sponsored by the Women's Society of Christian Service.

St. Philips

Chaplain Norris Einertsen, Protestant chaplain at Fort Ord, will conduct the service this Sunday in the absence of Pastor George Schardt, who is on vacation for several weeks.

The following Sunday, the guest minister will be the Rev. Robert Rippe, administrative chaplain at Fort Ord.

Services will be conducted as usual at 10 a.m.

Presbyterian

Guest preacher at the Carmel Presbyterian Church Sunday will be Dr. Harland E. Hogue of Berkeley.

Dr. Hogue is professor of homilectics at Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley and professor of worship and American church history, Graduate Theological Union, Berkeley, and minister of the United Church of Christ.

In the absence of the pastor, Dr. George Hunter Hall, now attending the general assembly of the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., in Rochester, N.Y., Dr. Hogue will preach at the identical 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. services.

A graduate of Monmouth College and of San Francisco Theological Seminary, Dr. Hogue secured his Ph.D. from Columbia University of New York. He has served as associate professor of religion at Scripps College and Claremont Graduate School, has been visiting lecturer at Andover Newton Theological School, and at Silliman University in the Philippines, as well as visiting professor of worship at Union Theological Seminary in New York. An important part of his career has been traveling and researching around the world.

Author of many books, Dr. Hogue has been Religious Emphasis Week speaker at universities and colleges across the nation.

Christian Science

"Soul and Body" is the subject of the Bible lesson-sermon Sunday at the First Church of Christ, Scientist.

One of the scriptural verses is from Psalms: "In the multitude of my thoughts within me thy comforts delight my soul."

A related passage to be read from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy states: "Unless the harmony and immortality of man are becoming more apparent, we are not gaining the true idea of God; and the body will reflect what governs it, whether it be Truth or error, understanding or belief, Spirit or matter. Therefore acquaint now thyself with Him, and be at peace."

Four people tell in a program entitled, "Alcoholism—Freedom Is Possible," just how their understanding of their own true identity and their growing appreciation of man's relationship to God healed them of the desire to drink. Station KRML will broadcast the program at 6:30 a.m. and Station KDON at 8:45 a.m. on Sunday.

Christian Science lecturer deplores "polluted" thinking

As important as it is to deal with pollution of the air and water, it is even more important to deal with the underlying mental pollution, a Christian Science lecturer told an audience in Carmel last week.

Speaking under the auspices of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Grace Bemis Curtis of Pittsburgh declared:

"Pure water and pure air become polluted when waste products are pouring into them. Just so, when the waste products of material thinking such as fear, resentment, hate, violence, lust, disease and death, pour unchecked into our thinking and then our lives, our thoughts become so clogged with this mental pollution we don't recognize clear, true spiritual ideas. Then our inharmonious experience expresses the smog of our thinking."

On tour as a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, Miss Curtis spoke in Sunset Auditorium on the subject, "Let's Choose Heaven Here." Mrs. Gladis O. Piper introduced her.

Individuals concerned about solving the problem of pollution have a decision to make, the lecturer maintained.

"The choice is ours," Miss Curtis said, "to make right here and now. We can accept the pollution resulting from materially-based thinking, or we can have the pure, invigorating atmosphere of thinking from a wholly spiritual basis."

Calling for a spiritually enlightened choice, she said:

"None of us would intentionally eat contaminated food nor drink contaminated water, but most of us willingly think contaminated thoughts. The same fastidious people, who wouldn't let a drop of contaminated food touch their lips, open wide their thought to a steady diet of lurid mental muck...

"We're told that when material waste ceases to be poured into water and air, its dire effects can be eliminated. Just so, when we cease to allow the waste products of material thinking to flood our mental homes, our consciousness purges itself. We become aware of our true spiritual nature, wholly expressing God. Then our thought turns spiritward and our lives function normally and harmoniously.

"Well, you may say, the problem is much more than just what I think. So it is. But your individual experience becomes one of heaven or hell according to your individual choice."

According to the lecturer, basic requirements for following a pollution-less way of life include opening of thought to spiritual possibilities, moral courage based on an understanding of spiritual identity, the total selflessness which Christ Jesus expressed, and "universal love—love understood and demonstrated as expressing the universal principle of all true being, divine love."

Commenting on the Master's word, "Man shall not live by bread alone," Miss Curtis said:

"The many suicides today are not so much among those hungry for bread, as among those starved for spiritual meaning in life."

"Heaven," the lecturer said, "isn't a locality to be found in the future. It's a spiritually harmonious state of thought and experience, both here and hereafter. Just as hell isn't a locality either. It's completely polluted thinking and living, also here and hereafter. A lot of people are living in it right now. Where do you want to live?"

DINNER PARTY FOR GEORGE MARTIN

A veteran California Division of Forestry employee from Carmel was honored in Monterey recently with a dinner party celebrating his retirement from state service.

George Martin, who completed 30 years as a state accountant, started with the Department of Motor Vehicles in his home town, San Francisco, worked for a short time with the War Council and then in 1944, transferred to the Division of Forestry.

Martin and his wife, the former Elvie Jorgensen, will continue to live in the same Carmel Woods home they purchased in 1947 when the Division's Central Coast office was moved to Monterey. Their daughter, Marilyn, lives in Arcata with her husband and two children.

MARTHA BRUGGEMAN, owner of the Magic Fishbone, will discuss children's books which are of interest to all ages at the Church of the Wayfarer May 27. (Chase Ltd. Photo).

Wayfarer women to hear book talk next Thursday

"Books Too Good to Miss at Any Age" is the title of a talk to be given by Martha Bruggeman, owner of The Magic Fishbone children's book store in Carmel, at the Church of the Wayfarer's Women's Society of Christian Service luncheon meeting May 27.

Mrs. Bruggeman, a Carmel resident, was a teacher for 10 years, has served on the board of education and worked in many phases of scouting.

She holds classes for parents twice a year to discuss children's literature.

Mrs. Bruggeman says her "crowning experience" was to have the recently published "Anthology of Children's Literature" dedicated to her. One of the book's editors, Miss Evelyn Sickels, lives in Carmel.

The Magic Fishbone, formerly located behind the Clam Box restaurant, recently moved to new quarters on Mission and Seventh.

Little League family day barbecue Sunday

Carmel Little League's annual Family Day barbecue will be held Sunday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Little League Field.

Games and events will be a dart throw, cake walk, grab bag, dunk-the-manager and drawing for more than 40 prizes.

Softball games will be played throughout the afternoon between mothers and fathers, managers and coaches and a special game for girls.

The snack bar will be in operation for both lunch and early dinner.

Each family is asked to bring a home-made cake for the cake walk.

Organ recital scheduled Sunday at Church of Wayfarer

An organ recital to which the public is invited will be given at the Church of the Wayfarer at 4:30 p.m. Sunday by Betty Robinson Fors, organist at the Carmel church for the past year.

After graduating from the University of Washington, Mrs. Fors studied at the Chicago Musical College under Rudolph Ganz. She was a church organist at Tucson, Ariz., for seven years and at Everett, Wash., for twelve years. She also taught organ and piano at the Everett Community College and was piano soloist with the Everett and Seattle Symphony Orchestras. She has engaged in concert work in the Northwest.

What is Christian Science?

It is a religion based on the words and works of Christ Jesus. It has helped many like you to prove in a measure the meaning of Christ Jesus' promise: "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also." It shows the scientific basis of Christianity and how to avail yourself of the laws of God in everyday life. If you would like to learn more about Christian Science, you are welcome to come to our Reading Room and to read this week's Bible Lesson.

PARTY PLANS . . .

BY PHYLLIS JERVEY

Maloa Trimble and Patti Jameson are an inventive and cheerful twosome who sew together. Their shop, "Chrysalis," is in the El Paseo Court, Dolores and Seventh, Carmel. There these attractive partners create original costumes for "at home" afternoons and evenings...once referred to as hostess gowns...imported custom-quality fabrics, hand-finished by Maloa and Patti's expert fingers are made to order on simple lines.

There is a striking variety of texture and design...one of a kind is their passport to parties where a surprised hostess or guest doesn't meet the same costume head on. Most manufactured clothes, we discovered, are "slapped together" nowadays. This is where Maloa and Patti shine. Their artistic, yet conservative, in other words, "the best of taste" clothes, range from long, slimming gowns to separate skirts, blouses, pants "pour le sport" or a stunning cape lined with hand-sewn patchwork. They also have dreamed up an all white wedding dress made entirely of exquisite patches! Wash-and-dry muslin is fragile but enduring, non-fatiguing.

Such imagination...nothing bizarre! It is not a question of trying to make a dashing entrance...these non-extravaganza, non-cinema outfits are not to impress but to enjoy and in which to feel at ease without changing one's personality.

Cozily in front of the warming fireplace on a befogged day, or with the door opening onto the passion-vined court, an amusing chit-chat goes on between Jerry Williamson and Lisa Campbell who work together in the adjoining salon. They dispense beauty to complement and compliment these alluring costumes.

Speaking of good taste, which these four clever artists distribute with casualness and know-how, they fortunately for "Party Plans" also have a pracitcal approach to party or family nutrition.

Working as they do, the sustenance department must be prepared ahead so that drop-ins won't drop-out before being revived. This Carmel foursome believes, of necessity, that simply prepared dishes hit the sinking spot faster than elaborate concoctions. They can have an elegant touch. This is an individual matter.

Maloa's tried and true numbers are:

BEER AND WHISKEY STEW

Three lbs. top round of beef; 2 onions, diced; 1 (10 oz.) can condensed tomato soup; 1 tsp. curry powder; 2 tbsps. whiskey; ¼ cup beer; 1 clove garlic; salt and pepper.

Cut meat into medium pieces. Coat lightly with flour. Brown briefly; add other items. Cover with tap water. Simmer until tender..depending on quality of meat. The BEST is more of a success. Serve over rice, for eight.

There is a side dish that goes marvelously with the above, Maloa tells us, and we agree.

ONIONS PLUS VERMOUTH

Two lbs. or 2 cans whole boiling onions; ½ cube butter; ½ cup sweet vermouth. Saute whole onions in butter until golden. Turn as needed. Add vermouth and let stand. Just before serving, remove cover, heat over low heat to absorb into onion.

A great specialty to go with baked ham, candied sweet potatoes, is a Maloa family favorite:

SPINACH CLASSIC

Four pkgs. frozen chopped spinach, thawed; 2 cups basic white sauce; melted cheddar cheese; 8 strips crisply crumbled fried bacon; 4 hard cooked eggs, salt and pepper to taste.

In shallow casserole, first put a layer of spinach, next come the sliced eggs, top with cheese, then with bacon. Heat.

This freezes beautifully and is delightful with a lightly thrown together at the last moment green salad. Dessert doesn't seem to enter the picture, but there are always assortments of cheese and fresh fruits.

Now to Patti with her lovely smile. This is an expert who has won many prizes at our home economics exhibit in Monterey County's fairgrounds. Everything must start from scratch. No short cut methods. This fair-haired gal couldn't "boil an egg" (—just as well, since eggs are not supposed to be treated that way) until her entrance into winning trophies time and time again. Her husband came to taste Patti's fudge, which won a blue ribbon. Nothing left due to nibbling of onlookers...just that blue ribbon on an empty plate! Not very digestible. Instead of top winners, such as pie crust and fudge, Patti gave us:

MEXICAN BEAN DIP

One lb. ground beef; 1 cup chopped onions; 1 large can refried beans; 1 can Ortega green chile salsa; ¼ cup taco sauce; 1 tsp. salt; 1 tbsp. chile powder; 1 clove garlic, mashed; 1 cup cheddar cheese; ¼ cup pimiento-stuffed olives, sliced.

Brown meat, onion and garlic until beef is crumbly. Add remaining items excepting olives, cheese and ½ cup onion. Simmer 30 min. until thick. Turn into chafing dish. Top with ring of cheese around edge, next ring of onion, then olives in center. Keep hot. Serve with tortilla chips.

Anyone who likes Mexican food will enjoy this spicy South of the Border product...homemade by Patti. Even her children love it, showing how cosmopolitan these taste-conscious youngsters are today. Stronger intestinal fortitude.

Soloists for Vietnam orphan benefit concert to journey from Indiana

Madeline Schatz's violin concert Sunday at Sunset Auditorium will feature selections from the works of Beethoven, Massenet, Bartok, Tchaikovsky and Brahms.

The concert is a benefit for the GEM-Bach Mai Foundation, which is seeking funds to construct an orphanage in South Vietnam and to give assistance to other children's aid projects around the world.

The concert begins at 8 p.m. Miss Schatz and her accompanist, Andrea Swan, flying in from Indiana to donate their talents to benefit the foundation.

The program features Beethoven's "Sonata in F Major, Opus 24," Bartok's "Six Rumanian Folk Dances;" Tchaikovsky's "Canvonetta;" Brahms' "Sonata in A Major, Opus 100."

To keep abreast of the foundation's growing activities, the board meets tomorrow at the Carmel home of Georgianne Matthews, one of the organization's founders.

The Indian representative, Mrs. Najoo Khambatta of Bombay, arrived in Carmel recently to be on hand for the meeting. Mrs. Khambatta is director of the Communications and Remedial Education Center in Bombay.

Meanwhile, local school children have announced their intention to donate books and toys for the orphanage.

MRS. NAJOO Khambatta, Indian representative of the GEM-Bach Mai Foundation, and Georgianne Matthews of Carmel, a foundation director, look over a program for their organization's benefit concert Sunday at Sunset Center.

Miss Schatz, a long-time friend of Miss Matthews, is a newly-appointed faculty member at Indiana University in South Bend where she teaches violin and viola.

She has a B.M. magna cum laude from the University of Southern California, an M.M. with high honors from Indiana University and is presently working on her D.M.A. in violin at Indiana University. She is a member of Pi Kappa Lambda and Alpha Lambda Delta.

She has studied with Josef Gingold, Eudice Shapiro and David Dawson.

Prior to her appointment at Indiana, she taught privately in Los Angeles for seven years.

Miss Schatz has performed solos with the Detroit, Phoenix, Amarillo, Pasadena and California Junior symphony orchestras. She has played recitals in California, Nevada, Arizona, Colorado, Michigan, Illinois and Indiana.

Currently associate concertmaster of the Evansville Philharmonic, she has been concertmistress of the California Junior Symphony, Young Musicians Foundation Orchestra, Aspen Music School Orchestra and Indiana University Opera Orchestra.

This year, Miss Schatz made a concert tour of Holland, Austria and the U.S.S.R.

Andrea Swan, at age 14, made six solo appearances with the Pittsburgh Symphony. She is the recipient of many awards from musical organizations in that city.

Graduating from Oberlin College in 1968, she was a Bezazium scholarship recipient for four years and was awarded a prize by the Oberlin faculty as the outstanding musician of her class.

Miss Swan was a faculty member at the University of California at Berkeley in 1969 and spent the past two years earning her master's degree from Indiana University where she studies with Gygory Sebok. She is presently in the doctoral program.

Tickets for the concert, which cost $5 each and are tax deductible, are being sold at Three Rings on the Monterey wharf, Wells book shop in Carmel, the Hermitage shop in Carmel and the Thunderbird book store in Carmel Valley. Tickets may also be obtained by calling Miss Matthews at 624-4215.

Brown to speak to Dem women

A large delegation of Carmel women is expected to hear California Secretary of State Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown speak at the June 4 dinner sponsored by the Democratic Women's Club of Monterey County. President of the organization is Sandy Schleicher of Carmel.

The event, to which the public is invited, will be held at the Pacific Grove Community Center, 515 Junipero. Cocktails will begin at 6:30, dinner at 7:30. Price for the dinner is $3.50.

Interested persons may phone any one of these members for reservations: Frances Bowen, 624-8841; Nancy Olsen, 659-4428; or Frances Anderson, 375-1105.

Each bid must conform and be responsive to the invitation, the Information for Bidders, the Specifications, the Plans, and all other documents comprising the pertinent Contract Documents. Copies of the Contract Documents are now on file and may be obtained in the office of said board at the above address.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check payable to the District, or a satisfactory bid bond in favor of the District executed by the bidder as principal and a satisfactory surety company as surety, in an amount not less than 5 percent of the maximum amount of the bid. The check or bid bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder shall execute the contract if it be awarded to him in conformity with the Contract Documents, and shall provide the surety bond or bonds as specified therein within five (5) days after notification of the award of the contract to the bidder.

The District reserves the right to reject any or all bids, to accept or reject any one or more items of a bid, or to waive any irregularities or informalities in the bids or in the bidding. Preference will be made in the award for California made supplies, pursuant to Sections 4330 to 4334, inclusive, Government Code.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of thirty (30) days after the date set for the opening of bids.

A World of Your Own

This is what we offer you on a 165' lot in a quiet, forested area — and SO close in. The rhododendrons, azaleas and camellias are in glorious bloom and set off a most unusual timebered home.

Its 30' living room with oak plank floors opens from a gracious entry. Each of the 2 bedrooms has its own quality bath, and the kitchen has everything. And downstairs? Would you believe another bedroom — this one 30' with fireplace and bath? Or why not use it as a den?

The landscaping? Thomas Church did it and it's like a private park. $90,000 is the price and the value is much greater, but it CAN be yours for that!

Gracious Beauty in a Pastoral Setting of 2.7 Acres

Sits a lovely home in Hidden Hills off Los Laureles Grade in Carmel Valley, with a striking view of the Santa Lucia Mountain range.

The home is ranch type, with approximately 2300 square feet, one-story redwood with a shake roof. The home and yard are framed by redwood fencing and impeccable landscaping which has an automatically timed sprinkler system and water softener. Boasts also two sizable porches which overlook south and west vistas.

Interior of the home includes a large step-down living room with peaked beamed ceiling with a very attractive adobe fireplace, an excellent dining room, modern electric kitchen, 3 bedrooms (the master also being step-down with its own fireplace), 3 baths plus a huge utility room and laundry room.

There also is an unusual amount of closet and storage space, plus wall-to-wall carpeting, drapes and beautiful hardwood floors. A marvelous vista is 100 feet from the house and is surrounded by an 80'x20' cyclone fence for swimming pool, horses, dogs or meditating. The home is vacant, in mint condition and ready for occupancy. Call us soon before this is gone!!

A WORLD OF YOUR OWN! This outstanding home located in a park-like setting (over half an acre of magnificent giant oaks, lawns, gardens) in the choicest section of Hatton Fields combines all the charm of an older home with its high ceilings, heavy hand-carved beams, tile and hardwood floors, antique hardware, etc., with every modern convenience. An ideal home for raising your growing family, there are 5 bedrooms, 4 baths plus a den and a maid's room and bath. The striking 28' living room has beautiful high windows and garden outlook and the spacious dining room has an interesting indoor-outdoor fish pond and opens onto a handsome deck and rear garden. The stainless steel kitchen has every modern built-in and the adjoining multipurpose work room is equipped with extra sinks, washer, dryer, desk area and sewing center. We could go on and on ... but words cannot really describe all the unique features of this outstanding home. A very special property at $150,000!

JUST LISTED! Interesting and attractive two-bedroom, two-and-a-half-bath home in Hatton Fields affords privacy and a distant ocean and hill view filtered by lovely cypress trees. An unusual entry leads to a spacious living room and separate dining room, and adjoining the kitchen is a family room opening onto a terrace with outdoor fireplace. Corner location, attractively planted and fenced. $57,500.

BEAUTIFUL LOT. Located in the Carmel Point area this level site (60'x100') offers a lovely hill view and as a bonus has several well planted oaks. An excellent buy at $17,500.

LINES FROM LOIS

If Beauty is truly in the eye of the beholder,

there are a lot of beautiful eyes around Carmel-by-the-Sea! No matter how lovely their own land, visitors try to capture our special beauty on film and take it home with them, as my father is doing in the snapshot above. Some of us paint it, and some of us write about it, and some of us portray in sculpture, and some of us only walk around and admire it -- but all of us are awed by it, and all of us who live here permanently are blessed by it in a most uncommon way.

Here are two homes which participate in this special beauty in a spectacular and graceful way. If you have the means to make it possible to live so completely with the environment you so much appreciate, you will want to consider these unusual dwelling places as possibilities for your next home.

"Case del Puente" could be on the Riviera or the Costa Brava or any famous coastline of the world. Fortunately, it is on the coast just five miles South of Carmel. The handsome residence in its dramatic setting contains around 4000 square feet living area to take full advantage of the unmatched setting. Protected garden patio, unusual plantings, heated swimming pool, dramatic lighting -- all create a special enhancement of the site. Call for a brochure and a discussion of terms.

"Ship Rock" was created on a site which was long the dream location of local people who studied every fascinating aspect of its unusual spot on a cove, looking directly at Pt. Lobos. Lovingly planned, meticulously built, beautifully appointed. There is probably not another home in the area, as young as this, which so fits its site that it seems to have been there for years. May we show it to you? You will not easily forget your visit!

In one of Walt Whitman's notebooks, he said: "I believe that WHATEVER happens I shall not forget this earth." Carmel's beauty makes it seem a likely statement indeed!
